Steel Famine Felt Acutely In Hongkong

PETTY THIEVES MAKE LITTLE FORTUNES

The world iron and steel famine, which has been suddenly accentuated by the gigantic rearmament programmes now under way, is acutely affecting Hongkong.

Prices of scrap metals have risen by over 100 per cent. in the last six months.

An important factor in the iron shortage is the fact that a large proportion of the world's supply comes from Spain. Since last November Hongkong's imports from this country have ceased entirely.

The Telegraph understands that the shortage is seriously affecting several large projects which were to have been put in hand early this year.

Shipbuilding yards especially are feeling the pinch.

Thieves are finding it lucrative to steal all manner of scrap. In the past fortnight there have been almost twenty incidents where they have dug up telephone cables in order to steal the copper wire; on one occasion communication between Hongkong and Macao was seriously interrupted because thieves dug up and stole a portion of the cable.

Road railings, door knobs, radio aerials, electric light fittings, water meter fittings and all forms of metal scraps are commanding a ready market. At $70 a ton, Chinese coolies are making what to them are fortunes by stealing and selling "scrap."

Hongkong is exporting approximately 2,000 tons of this "scrap" to Japan every month.

Fetches Good Money

Stolen scrap is providing only a small part of this total. Old ships and even old motor-cars are fetching good money from Japanese buyers.

One second-hand car dealer told the Telegraph that he is realising more money from old cars by selling them as scrap than by selling them for further life on the roads.

According to the Hongkong Trade and Shipping Returns, Hongkong exported scrap iron and steel to the value of $1,519,207 during 1936, Japan being the principal purchaser. Over $1,000,000 of these sales represented scrap metal which had not been imported in the same year.

During 1936 Japan imported goods to the value of $17,075,303 from Hongkong. Of this amount, $7,243,110 was for metals of all types, and $207,710 was for minerals and ore.

In an effort to prevent export of scrap metal from China, the Nanking Ministry of War has issued a prohibition. This ban has been followed by such an orgy of smuggling that previous smuggling rams fade into insignificance. It indirectly has made of this Colony a concentration point for scrap from such places as Canton, Macao and Kwang Chow Wan. Practically all of the metal goes to Japan.

Japan for several years has been buying up all the scrap iron she could. From the United States, Australia, New Zealand, Malaya and other countries, Japan has been buying old ships, worn-out steel rails, old steel plate, every piece of junk that could be mustered.

Building contractors in Hongkong are experiencing considerable delay as a result of this steel and iron shortage.

It is understood, however, that the China Light and Power Company, which is erecting a giant new power house at Hung Hom, has succeeded in obtaining July delivery for the steel required for the structure. This is one of the few Hongkong firms which has been successful in fulfilling requirements.

SHIPS TAKING PRECAUTIONS

GERMANY MAKES NO THREATS

VON RIBBENTROP'S WORDS EXPLAINED WASHINGTON APOLOGY

Berlin, Mar. 5. A new interpretation of Herr Joachim von Ribbentrop's speech on German colonial aims, delivered at Leipzig Monday, and which was taken to imply a threat of forceful action unless her demands were complied with, was furnished by an official of the Foreign Office to-day.

Many Germans, he said, were under the impression that Herr von Ribbentrop, who is the Ambassador to Great Britain, sought to place before the world the alternative to the restoration of Germany's colonies. It was thought that he had said that unless they were handed back to her, Germany would rely upon her own strength, presumably to take them.

The official declared that the meaning which Herr von Ribbentrop intended was that Germany must have colonies, but that she would also rely upon her own strength, meaning her four-year plan, to make her independent in the event of emergencies arising.

Herr von Ribbentrop's words were therefore meant more as a promise than a threat.—Reuter.

AMERICAN APOLOGY

Washington, Mar. 5. The United States Government today apologised to Germany for the remarks of Mayor La Guardia of New York City when he spoke of Der Fuehrer as a "brown-shirted fanatic," it was thought that he had said that unless they were handed back to her, Germany would rely upon her own strength, presumably to take them.

AMERICAN APOLOGY

Washington, Mar. 5. The United States Government today apologised to Germany for the remarks of Mayor La Guardia of New York City when he spoke of Der Fuehrer as a "brown-shirted fanatic," it was thought that he had said that unless they were handed back to her, Germany would rely upon her own strength, presumably to take them.

The apology took the form of a verbal statement by Mr. James Dunn, chief of the Western European Affairs Division of the State Department, to Dr. Hans Thomsen, Counsellor of the German Embassy.

Mr. Dunn said he earnestly deplored the utterances which had offended the German Government. They did not represent the attitude of the American Government towards the German Government. But he emphasised that there was a right of free speech in the United States which was "guaranteed by the constitution to every citizen, and cherished as part of the national heritage."—Reuter Special.

DEFENDS HIMSELF

New York, March 5. Following the German protest against his speech in which he made allegedly insulting references to Herr Hitler, Mayor La Guardia, of New York to-day stated:

"I still stand by what I said, and repeat it again. I referred to the brown-shirted fanatic who is menacing the peace of Europe. Mr. Hitler and his Government have been quick to recognise that I mean him. I don't know whether that was due to a guilty conscience or to my powers of description."—United Press.

Madrid, March 5. Pick and shovel were pitted against rifle and machine-gun to-day in the desperate battle still raging for the possession of Oviedo, which a small insurgent force has been defending for weeks against a powerful army of Asturians, whose shock force is a reckless regiment of miners.

This latest message from Gijon contradicts yesterday's despatches that the Government troops had suspended operations on that front.

In order to remove buildings barring their way into the town, the Government forces advances with picks and shovels and undermined buildings and walls, and when they reached forward without waiting to get rifles to consolidate the position they hoped to capture.

Government planes assisted the attack by bombing the rebel positions persistently.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

Canton, Mar. 6.

Mr. William Kirkpatrick, special representative in China of the British Exports Credit Department, who arrived here last night to study possible industrial development in Kwangtung, is to-day meeting officials of the Provincial Government in charge of iron and steel projects.

Mr. Kirkpatrick was given a warm welcome, being met by General Hsien Han-ping, Vice Commander-in-Chief. He is staying at the Municipal reception house at the guest of the Government.—Reuter.

"LIGHTS OUT" ORDER FOR HONGKONG MANOEUVRES

During the Combined Operations, the Colony will test the effect of a "lights out" order, according to regulations issued to-day.

This is as follows:

"In exercise of the powers conferred by section 2 of the Lighting Control Ordinance, 1936, the Governor in Council makes the following regulations, by way of practice for an occasion of emergency or public danger, by express command:

TOTAL REGULATIONS

"1. These regulations shall be in force during the whole period between the hours of 2 a.m. and 4 a.m. on Sunday, the 21st day of March,

HONGKONG SEEKING SILENCE

TRAFFIC TO RUN
WITHOUT HORNS

AREAS

Following the Kowloon Residents' Association's approval of Government's suggestion that Kowloon should become a City of Silence at night, the traffic authorities are formulating plans for putting the scheme into effect.

Any motorists who sounds an electric horn, any taxi driver who toots his hooter, and lorry driver who blares at a street crossing, or tram driver who clangs his gong after 11 p.m. at night and before 7 a.m. in the morning will be breaking the law.

The experiment is to be tried on both sides of the harbour. In Kowloon it will embrace the whole of the residential area south of and including Jordan Road. The area for the island has not yet been defined. The Kowloon area will cover most of the older European residential portion of the mainland.

It is hoped that the institution of Silence Zones will have the two-fold effect of making motorists more careful, thus reducing the toll of the road; and restoring to sleeping Hongkong a peace and quiet that vanished with the substitution of motor cars for rickshaws.

PARIS EAGER TO REASSURE INVESTORS

Quest for Funds To Build Armaments

Paris, Mar. 5.

The Government is planning a powerful drive to make the proposed big national defence loan successful.

In addition to the speech of the Prime Minister, M. Leon Blum, which will be broadcast Sunday, listeners throughout the country will hear addresses by M. Edouard Daladier, Minister for War, M. Jules Jeanneney, prominent lawyer and politician, M. Edouard Herriot, many times Prime Minister, and M. Joseph Caillaux, former Finance Minister. They will go on the air at various stages of the campaign to keep the nation's enthusiasm alive. All are notable speakers.

It is with a view to reassuring the French investing public, that the Defence Loan will be offered with the undertaking that interest and redemption will be effected at the lender's option in francs, sterling or dollars, or any other desired currency.

LABOUR SPLIT THREAT

STEEL WORKERS OPPOSE C.I.O.

ASK GREEN'S ASSISTANCE

Pittsburgh, March 5.

The possibility of a struggle for power between the two greatest labour organisations in the United States, the American Federation of Labour and the Committee of Industrial Organisation, loomed large to-day.

A committee of employees representing 18 mills of the Carnegie (Illinois) Steel Corporation asked Mr. William Green, President of the Federation of Labour, for assistance in opposing Mr. John L. Lewis, and his Committee of Industrial Organisation, which has threatened to close mills, and the plants of almost every other major industry, unless workers come into line with his plan for union.

Mr. Green, who is not on exactly friendly terms with Mr. Lewis, rejected by telegram the invitation from the employees, saying: "Owing to the consistent policy of the American Federation of Labour to oppose employee representation in organisations" he could not be of help.

But he said, he might consider the invitation if the employees were to organise an entirely new steelworkers union, free of company influence.—Reuter.

Y. M. C. A. REPORTS DEFICIT OVER WORKING YEAR

Members of the European Young Men's Christian Association who attend the annual meeting scheduled for Thursday, March 18, will be informed that the past working year has resulted in a deficit of $9,877, compared with a surplus of $1,793 for 1935.

The Working Account discloses that income from room, rents and meals, as compared with $1,155 in 1935.

A total of $12,778 under the heading "Depreciation (Buildings and Furniture)" has been included under Expenditure in the Working Account, so that the deficit of $9,877 appears to be actually a working surplus of $2,801 last year.

As a result of the apparent deficit, however, the general surplus has been reduced from $20,456 to $19,570.

Liabilities include $113,742 owing to the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, and $25,233 Building and Furniture Reserve.

Social and athletic expenditure was drastically pruned, only $765 be-

Discipline for UNRULY CURLS

PRESENT-DAY hair styles—all curly and rolls—are attractive enough. Trouble is to keep them going. The better they look when you leave the hairdresser the more seem to go to pieces in a couple of days.

There is a knack about keeping curls trim, neatly set. First you must be prepared to spend at least ten minutes every night fixing them when you go to bed, however late it is and tired you are. Brush your hair firmly across your head, not straight down.

Then comb out each curl with a fine comb, taking each curl as small as you have the patience for. Be careful to fix the curls the way you want them to sit. Pin them flat on your head—two pins put crossways to each curl.

Put in combs to hold the waves, and spray your hair with setting lotion—enough to make it quite damp. (It's spirit and will dry off quickly.) Tie up your head with a net or veil (remember the one we told you about last week?)

In the morning comb out each curl with a tail comb. Curl them over your finger in the direction they are to sit, and roll them round your finger with the pointed end of the comb. Fix them with an invisible hairpin when you put on a hat.

An occasional fine spray with brilliantine keeps curls glossy and trim.

HOME PAGE COOK on BACON

OUR taste in bacon is distinctly milder than it used to be.

It is rare nowadays to come across a piece which needs prolonged soaking before it can be approached with any safety. Those thirst-provoking gammons are no more.

As a rule the bacon is ready for the pot or pan as it comes from the shop.

Any salty survivals from the past can be detected by a pale deposit on them and a marked tendency to dryness on the cut surface.

Not too Lean

THE rind of a good piece of bacon should be thin, and there should be a fair proportion of firm, clear fat. Too lean a piece has obviously come from a pig which has been unhappy and ill-nourished in its lifetime.

The cuts from which the favourite breakfast rasher is extracted are usually the back or the streaky. Its thickness must largely depend upon individual taste (but except when it is going to be curled round something in a savoury or used as an adornment for roast chicken, a rasher of extreme thinness should, I think, be avoided). Your very thin rasher seems to lose a certain amount of character in the cooking.

Haste spoils It

SOME rashers lose everything in the cooking, but the blame for this must be attached to the cook. Excessive speed has ruined many a breakfast.

After it has been trimmed of its rind the rasher should be laid in a hot (but not red-hot) pan and be allowed to cook gently in its own fat.

If it is going to be cooked beneath the grill too fierce a flame must never be allowed to play upon it. A hastily cooked rasher invariably turns into a kind of brittle wood.

Use its own Fat

THAT other abomination, the limp and greasy rasher, is caused, on the other hand, by too slow a cooking, too hasty a dishing-up, and by the unnecessary addition of other fat by the timid cook who fears that her bacon will otherwise be burned.

So it will be seen that a certain nicely of timing and touch is needed to produce the perfect rasher.

Having produced it, our next concern is with the things which best accompany it.

To go with It

LEAVING aside the all too obvious egg, except to remark that the scrambled egg might well be more often substituted for the fried one, we come to such things as liver, kidneys, mushrooms, tomatoes, and the less usual, but quite admirable, apple and banana.

Finally, we reach the more humble resources of our larder in the shape of bread and cold vegetables.

These, I think, shine with unexpected brilliance in conjunction with bacon, for it has few better accompaniments than golden squares or fried bread, or slices of cooked potato (with or without the addition of greens) which are cooked in its fat, and should also have the tinge of gold.

CINEMA NOTES

"Rainbow on the River," the second singing picture to star the young lyric tenor, Bobby Breen, opens at the Queen's Theatre to-day. Sol Lesser, who produced the Prinzel Production for RKO Radio release, has surrounded the nine-year-old songster with a fine cast, including May Robson, Charles Butterworth, Alan Mowbray, Bentle Hume, Louise Beavers, Mandy Knowlton, Henry O'Neill, and the famous Hall Johnson Choir. Produced on a more elaborate scale than Bobby Breen's initial vehicle, "Let's Sing Again," the picture offers the young star for more opportunities to exhibit his brilliant voice. A variety of tuneful melodies, an appealing story and spectacular settings add distinction to the musical film. Other players who earn distinct recognition for their capable characterizations are May Robson as the dowager grandmother, Charles Butterworth in a sympathetic portrayal of a meek butler and Bobby's only friend in the household; Louise Beavers as the Southern matron, Alan Mowbray and Benita Horne as the mercenary, scheming relatives, Marilyn Knowlton as their arrogant off-spring and Henry O'Neill as a kindly pastor in a New Orleans church where Bobby sings in the choir. The Hall

Johnson Choir deserves special commendation for its outstanding singing in the spectacular levee scenes.

"Garden of Allah," prompted by the success of his first independently produced picture "Little Lord Fauntleroy," David O. Selznick entered the technicolor field to produce "The Garden of Allah," which brings Marlene Dietrich and Charles Boyer to the King's Theatre to-day.

Stan Kaufmann, Hollywood's leading colour make-up expert, experimented with each player separately in order to achieve the proper effects. Howard "Duke" Green, leading technicolour cameraman, who recently photographed "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," carefully "film-tested" every bolt of material for costumes and properties in order to select with the best suited to the subdued effects desired by the film company. To support Miss Dietrich and Boyer, Selznick, who has become famous for the strength of his casts, engaged several other well-known players, notably Basil Rathbone, C. Aubrey Smith, Joseph Schildkraut, and Tilly Losch, internationally famous dancer.

"Anthony Adverse"

The long awaited Warner Bros. production of "Anthony Adverse," filmed from Hervey Allen's cyclopian novel, which boasts of 3,000,000 readers, comes to the Majestic Theatre to-day, with Fredric March in the stellar role and Olivia de Havilland playing opposite him in

THE fact that there is a shortage of shorthand-typists in London will come as a surprise to many overseas business girls. The rate of wages as quoted by some employment agencies—£3 a week for a junior shorthand-typist twenty years of age—is also unexpected.

One employment agency reports that it has no junior trained shorthand-typists between the ages of seventeen and twenty-one on its books, and has a long list of vacancies awaiting such girls.

Two reasons are put up for this shortage. First, there are few girls in London between these ages, as they are the children born at the end of the war, when the birth rate was extremely low, especially in girls. Second, fewer girls want to be typists; they prefer other more individual and artistic jobs.

Shortage

THERE seems to be an all-round shortage at Home of business girls between the ages of fifteen and twenty-one. Perhaps this is to the good.

Fewer girls mean higher wages for the few.

Higher wages mean more interesting jobs and better prospects, for no business man is going to pay a high wage for mere donkey work—he will install machines to do the donkey work and use the girls for more intelligent posts.

Exercise

NEWCOMERS to the business world have two problems to tackle outside their work—health and friends. It costs money to keep healthy in a large city, and the junior business girl can ill afford to spend it.

A BUSINESS girl has written

She has supported herself since the age of eighteen, and at last is able to realise her ambition and spend her summer leave abroad. She has also taught herself German in the last two years.

She is interested in girls in other professions—particularly artistic ones.

The King's Health

TO CONSERVE HIS ENERGIES

ARRANGEMENTS are being made to relieve King George of all unnecessary work, so that he may conserve his energies for the heavy duties that necessarily fall upon him.

The Duke of Gloucester, who has given up his Army career for the purpose, will take over many of the official and semi-official functions that would normally be performed by the Sovereign.

Immediately before, and immediately after, the Coronation King George will take several days' complete rest.

Those in close touch with the Court emphasise that he is not ill, but his eagerness in the past has resulted in his taking on more tasks than he could perform without risk to his health.

The intended Coronation Durbar at Delhi will not be held until next year. If the tentative plans for ceremonial visits to Canada, New Zealand, Australia and South Africa after that are proceeded with, the journeys will be spread over several years.

Another Child Bride Found In America

POLICE PART COUPLE, HOLD THE HUSBAND

New York, Feb. 25.

CIVILISED New York, outraged that the backwoods laws of Tennessee could permit the marriage of a nine-year-old girl to a grown-up mountaineer, to-day discovered another child bride within the boundaries of its own State.

Twelve-year-old Leona Elizabeth Roshia, of Watertown, New York, admitted to-day that she became the bride of nineteen-year-old Stanley Backus about a month ago.

KITTY MASTERS WED AT GRETNA

MISS KITTY MASTERS, stage and radio crooner, went through a Gretna Green marriage ceremony over the anvil with Mr. Victor Baker, twenty-seven-year-old son of a Leicester hotel keeper, on December 30.

Miss Masters, shy, was anxious that the news should not get out. Here are the details:

Said Mr. "Blacksmith" Rennison: "They signed the register as Ronald Victor Baker, of Edinburgh, Midlothian, and Kathleen Masterson, of Castletown, Pendleton (Lanes)."

Miss Master's father was a Mr. Lawrence Masterson, of Pendleton (Lanes).

Mr. Baker Silent

I saw Miss Masters at the Birmingham Hippodrome. With her was Mr. Baker. He said: "You had better see Kitty about this... I do not want to say anything."

Miss Masters said, "I did not want to say anything about it."

"I do not know how it leaked out. My agent rang me up and said he had heard from the gramophone company that I was married."

Later she telephoned to the newspaper office in Fleet-street and said, "Well—I am married, but . . ."

New York State laws prohibit marriage licences being issued to girls not yet eighteen years old.

Leona Roshia left her classroom one afternoon in January, and went with her sweetheart, a muscular painter, to the country clerk's office. There, it is stated, she showed the registrar a birth certificate giving her age as eighteen.

Her parents knew nothing of their wedding plans, but they gave their blessing to the match as soon as they heard about it.

Said the bride's mother: "Nobody had better try to separate them, no matter what happens in Tennessee. My daughter and her husband are happy together and I'll fight any attempt to part them."

She will have to do plenty of fighting. The law has acted swiftly. Police called on the husband and held him in jail for a time, without charging him, pending an investigation.

Late this afternoon Mrs. Backus was ordered to be separated from her husband while the county authorities began an investigation.

Miss Annie Kellogg, county agent for children, petitioned the court on the ground that the girl was a "neglected delinquent."

CHILD IN TEARS

Judge Harold Porter ordered the child to be brought before him.

Leona arrived in tears. She looked about eighteen, had short, dark hair.

The judge talked to her, then ordered that she be taken to hospital until the authorities decide whether she will be allowed to return to her husband.

Miss Masters said, "I did not want to say anything about it."

"I do not know how it leaked out. My agent rang me up and said he had heard from the gramophone company that I was married."

Later she telephoned to the newspaper office in Fleet-street and said, "Well—I am married, but . . ."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LESSON SERMON

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Hongkong

SUNDAY'S SERVICE

The subject of the Lesson Sermon in all churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow, March 7, will be "Man."

The Golden Text will be: "Ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord, and my servant whom I have chosen" (Isaiah 43: 10).

Among others, the following citations from the Bible will be read: "Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the commandments of the world, and not after Christ. For in him dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily. And ye are complete in him, which is the head of all principality and power. For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female; for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." (Col. 2: 8-10, Gal. 3: 20, 28).

The Lesson Sermon will also include the following passages from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Union of the masculine and feminine qualities constitutes completeness. The masculine mind reaches a higher tone through certain elements of the feminine, while the feminine mind gains courage and strength through masculine qualities. These different elements conjoin naturally with each other, and their true harmony is in spiritual oneness. The Lamb's wife presents the unity of male and female as no longer two wedded individuals but as two individual natures in one; and this compounded spiritual individuality reflects God as Father-Mother, not as a corporeal being. In this divinely united spiritual consciousness, there is no impediment to eternal bliss,—to the perfectibility of God's creation." (Pages 57, 677).

One of the last public functions which His Excellency the Governor and Lady Caldecott will attend before leaving Hongkong will be the charity ball arranged by the Women's Auxiliary of the Society for the Protection of Children, which is to be held at the Peninsula Hotel on Friday, April 9, from 9.30 p.m. to 2 a.m. Norman Brookes' band will be in attendance, and there will be special cabaret numbers. Tickets, $4 each, including supper, may be obtained from the Hongkong and Peninsular Hotels, as well as from members of the Women's Auxiliary.

Master and De Luxe models, each in six body types, comprise the two series of new Chevrolets, identical in chassis, engine and body design, except for their front spring suspension, rear axle and steering gear ratios and accessory equipment. Knee action, formerly optional as an extra, is now standard equipment of all de luxe models at no extra cost.

New power, economy, and smoothness are the features of the new arrivals, combined with beauty, style, safety and comfort. In longer, completely redesigned bodies by Fisher, with safety plate glass all round at no additional charge.

The entirely new six-cylinder valve-in-head engine, more compact and smoother, developing greater power and torque at all speeds, is said to result in the finest performance in Chevrolet history.

ANNUAL DINNER DANCE

The good cheer that always marks the gathering of fellow-countrymen was much in evidence last night when the Society of Yorkshires in Hongkong held its sixth annual cabaret-dinner-dance, at the Hongkong Hotel.

There were large number of guests, and parties were given by Mr. J. D. Danby (Vice-President), Mr. P. C. Potts, Mr. J. Scott-Harston, Col. H. C. Harrison, Mr. L. de Rome, Miss Townsend, Mr. A. A menu had been prepared by Mr. Stoker and Mr. Fisher which contributed to the Yorkshire atmosphere, and the generous list of courses concluded with "Thank the Lord for what we have gotten. If there'd been more, it would 'ave been more." "Turns" were given by Mr. J. Scott-Harston, Mr. Willy Geall and Mr. A. R. Brown, illness preventing the appearance of Mr. H. Mundt.

The loyal toast was given by His Excellency the Governor, after which the President proposed the toast of the Society.

SPEED VERSUS ARMOUR IN NEW WARSHIP DESIGN

SPECIFICATIONS OF TWO POWERS COMPARED,
SHOWING SHARP DIFFERENCES IN MODERN NAVAL STRATEGY

London, Feb. 24:

Great Britain's two new battleships, laid down early in January on Tyneside and Merseyside, will be unlike any warships ever known before in the British navy.

They will be five knots faster than any dreadnaught Britain ever has had, and probably faster than the famous battle cruiser Hood. They will mount a new type gun of a calibre the British navy has not used previously. The ships will have 5 inches of armour plate on the decks as protection against the largest known aerial bombs. They will carry far more aircraft than any existing ship.

In contrast to the two mighty floating fortresses will be two new United States battleships recently authorized. Specifications for these two ships, as made public by the Navy Department in Washington, revealed that America will adhere to its traditional policy of putting big guns and heavy armour ahead of speed.

TOP SPEED SECRET

The two U. S. ships, whose keels will be laid early in the summer, probably will have a speed of 20 or 27 knots. Britain's new battleships undoubtedly will have speeds well above 30 knots, although this is not known definitely just how fast they will be.

Designs for modern battleships have been constantly under study by the Admiralty construction department in recent years. Twelve different designs have been produced, ranging in size from 25,000 tons to fantastic fortresses of 80,000 tons. Word from Washington is that the two new U. S. ships will not exceed the 35,000-ton limit set by the Washington Naval Treaty, although it no longer is effective.

Since the last naval conference it has been universally accepted in Admiralty circles that new battleships would have to be kept within 35,000 tons. This has led to intensive research in reducing weight without detracting from armour protection or gun power. Britain heretofore has never used the 14-inch and 18-inch guns, although foreign navies have.

NEW GUN DEVELOPED

In the long interval since the last British battleship was laid down, arms makers have been experimenting with new type weapons. Now it is revealed that they have developed a weapon of smaller size than 14 inches, but it is said to be more efficient than the standard 14-inch gun.

Details of this new weapon are secret, but it is known that the new gun weighs 25 tons less than the old one, so that a battleship mounting eight would save 200 tons in weight. This poundage could be converted to making the craft less vulnerable by increasing the armour plate.

It is believed that the new British gun fires a shell weighing 1,800 hundredweight and the rate of fire is said to be three rounds in two minutes.

U.S. TO USE THREE TURRETS

According to word from Washington, the gun size for the two new U. S. battleships has not been decided definitely, but they will be either 14 or 16-inch. Specifications as they now stand permit an option. Regardless of the size gun mounted, these craft will have only three turrets. If the 14-inch gun is chosen, then each turret will mount four. If the larger weapon is used, three will be mounted.

It is pointed out here that the 16-inch guns would be more powerful than either Great Britain or Japan ever has mounted on any fighting craft. Obviously the American ships have been designed as more defensive than offensive. First, navy observers point out, is the slower speed. Then the armour plate probably will be heavier. Speed, admittedly was desirable, but not at the sacrifice of weight, big guns and heavy armour.

ARCTIC SEARCH FOR WEATHER'S ORIGIN PLANNED

U. S. Bureau to Sponsor
Two-Year Expedition
In Greenland

New York, Feb. 26:

An Arctic expedition which may revolutionize weather forecasting in this country is being planned by Clifford J. MacGregor, New York, under auspices of the U. S. Weather Bureau.

The party is scheduled to leave New York, N. J., next June on MacGregor's 120-foot schooner for Fort Conger on the north-east corner of Greenland.

MacGregor, chief meteorologist for the Second International Expedition to the Arctic in 1932-33, pointed out that it is an accepted scientific fact that weather in the far north has great influence as far south as the lower tier of states. He hopes to discover just how great that influence is.

The explorer will use a comparatively new approach—the study of "air masses" in place of air currents, thus obtaining a three-dimensional or cubical view of the atmosphere rather than a flat plane. By this method, air streams in upper altitudes can be traced to and from their sources and high and low pressure areas can be analyzed.

"We think that the complete birth of weather can be studied, because weather must originate somewhere, and scientists now believe it is in the Arctic," MacGregor said.

TO USE BALLOONS

"There are thirty-seven weather stations in this country for the study of 'air masses.' But they have made comparatively little progress because their experimental airplanes can ascend only in good weather. We hope to use compact meteorological recorders with which the Massachusetts Institute of Technology is experimenting. They weigh about three pounds, and will be sent up on balloons. A radio transmitter will dispatch atmospheric conditions to our receiver on the ground. Thus we will not be hampered by unfavourable weather conditions. Our findings will be broadcast to the U. S. Weather Bureau twice daily by short wave radio."

Work has been accomplished in this field by Soviet Russia and Canada, and in Norway. It is hoped that within four or five years the United States, in co-operation with these countries, may be able to establish permanent meteorological bureaus throughout the entire north to forecast weather for the entire world as far ahead as two weeks. The value of this to shipping, insurance services, and farmers would be incalculable.

"We will also investigate the Arctic natives' belief that the aurora borealis emits sound," MacGregor said. "Approximately 95 per cent of the natives swear it does, while scientists vow it does not. Facetious persons say it is just static electricity crackling in the natives' beards. Natives say they can hear the aurora distinctly—a sound like the rustling of silk. But static which causes auroras is discharged about 60 miles from the earth, and therefore any sound which might be emitted would take at least eight minutes to reach our ears; so you can see it could not be connected with any separate discharge."

CONSIDER VACUUM THEORY

"Also, scientists believe there is an extensive vacuum in these upper atmospheric regions, through which no sound could possibly pass—unless there is another conductor up there which they know nothing about. We are going to try to detect any sound by lowering the ground wire of our radio straight down to sea-level. Thus, any sound which might reach the earth will be picked up by this wire transmitted to our car."

"Another problem which we will attempt to solve one which has puzzled scientists for many years—is the origin of the blonde eskimos in these northern regions. Four or five hundred years ago, a settlement of Vikings in Greenland suddenly disappeared. Some say the Vikings migrated westward and interbred with the Mongolian type Eskimos, thus causing these blondes to appear. But no one really knows. The mystery will be studied by geologists and paleontologists who will accompany us."

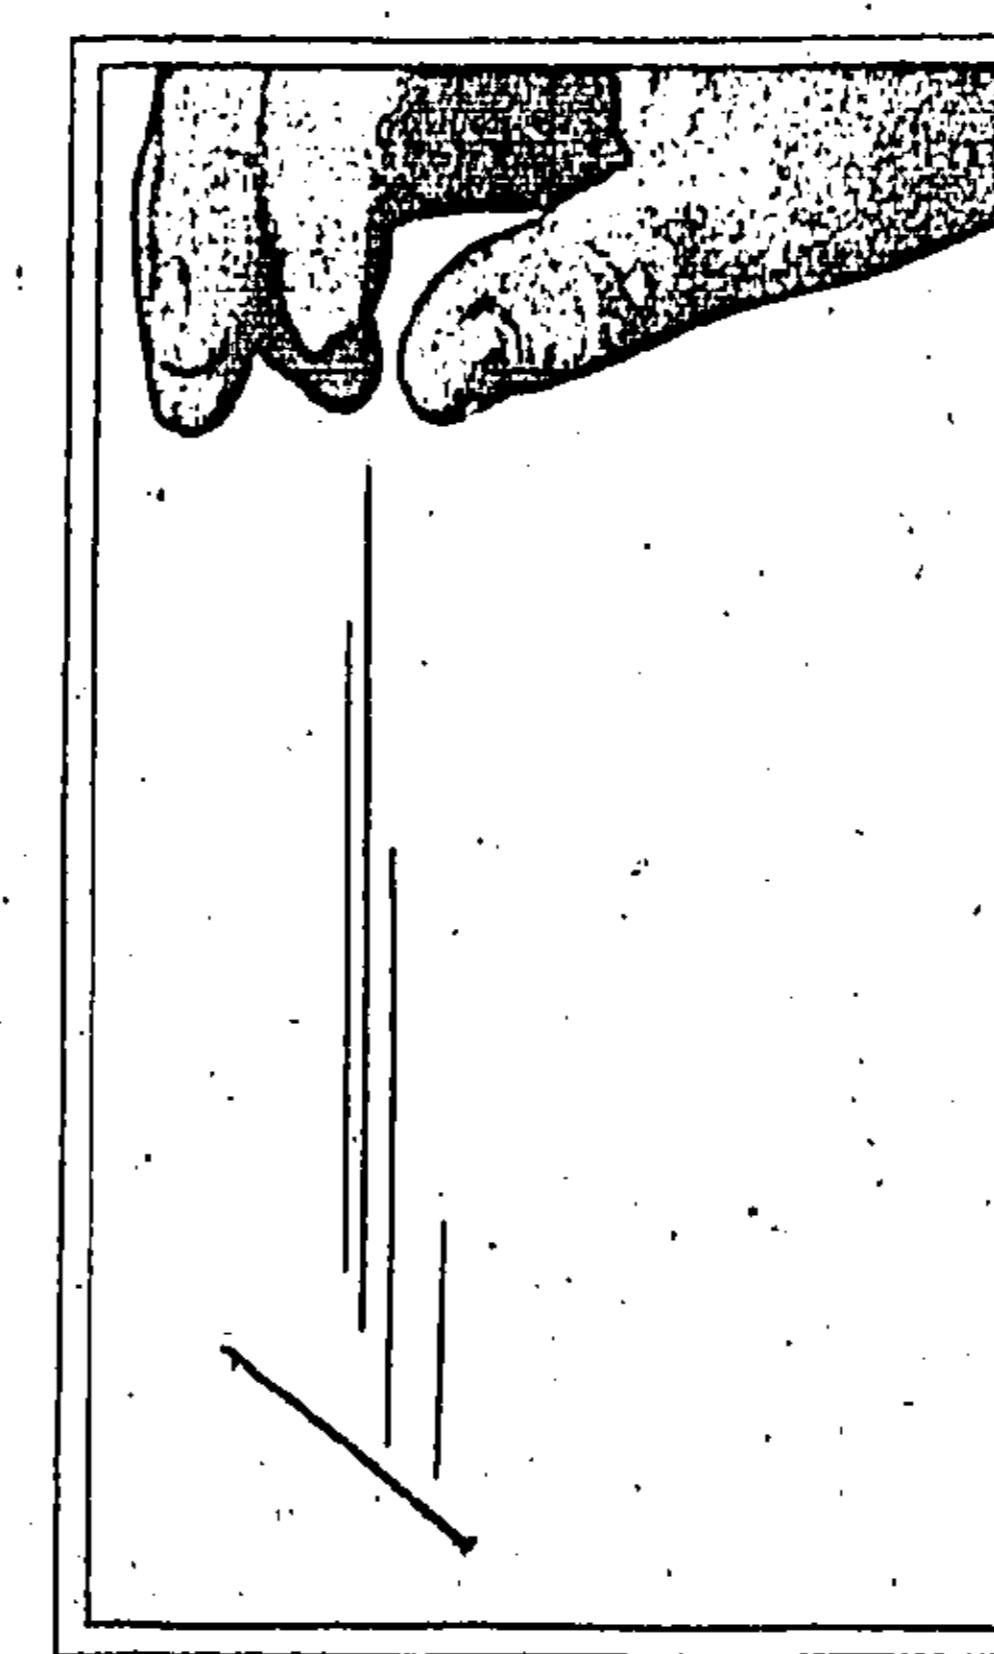

The expedition is financed by the U. S. Weather Bureau. Scientists in other fields invited will pay only their living expenses. Owen D. Wright, of the New York Explorers Club, has been invited as an authority on topography.

It is hoped that men in the fields of geology, paleontology, botany, zoology, and archaeology also will accompany the two-year expedition. Expenses, stations for an extra year are being taken in case the men are delayed by ice.

London Balloon Barrage Derided

FRENCH PLAN FOUR TIMES BETTER

—Says Sir Hugh Seely

THE question whether the Government are adopting the best type of balloon barrage for the defence of London against air raids was raised in the House of Commons recently.

It was suggested that the "apron" for Paris will possibly be 6½ miles high and that London's would be only 1½ miles high.

Sir Hugh Seely (Lib., Berwick-on-Tweed) introduced the matter by asking whether delivery of the balloons for the barrage defence of London began before the end of 1936, as promised by the Air Ministry, and how many had been delivered up to date.

Sir Philip Sassoon (Under-Secretary for Air): The answer to the first part of the question is in the affirmative. As to the second part, I hardly think it would be in the public interest to give the figures, but satisfactory deliveries have been made.

Sir Hugh Seely: What is the cause of the delay?

Sir Philip Sassoon: There has been no delay.

Sir Hugh Seely asked whether the Air Ministry intended to adopt for the balloon barrage defence of London the improved "Ariel" type of balloon used by the French Government and whether any negotiations for the acquisition of the necessary patents were taking place or had been concluded.

A YEAR'S NEGOTIATIONS?

Sir Philip Sassoon: The type to which Sir Hugh Seely refers is not that for which orders have been placed.

Sir Hugh Seely: Is it not a fact that the negotiations have been going on for over a year?

Sir Philip Sassoon: The type of balloon decided on by the Air Staff for the defence of London is the one we think most suitable for the purpose.

Sir Hugh Seely: Is it not a fact that it has been stated publicly that the "Ariel" can go up to 35,000ft, whereas the one the Government has selected can go up only to 8,000ft?

Sir Philip Sassoon: It depends upon the height one wants to have them for.

Sir Hugh Seely: Is it not a fact that it has been decided that this barrage of balloons for the defence of London is to be limited to 8,000ft, and not to 35,000ft?

No answer was returned.

THE GOLD OF SPAIN

Capt. Ramsay (Conn., Peebles) asked whether the attention of the Foreign Secretary had been drawn to the action last Tuesday of the Soviet representative to the Spain Non-Intervention Committee in refusing to represent to his Government the view of other countries that the question of the gold belonging to the Bank of Spain must be considered in regard to any plan to withhold financial assistance from both sides in the civil war.

Lord Cranborne (Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs) replied that the proceedings of the Committee were confidential, and as no mention of any such matter was made in the communiqué reporting the meeting he was not aware of the evidence on which Captain Ramsay based his suggestion.

Sir Nairn Sanderson (Conn., Middlesex): Is it not a fact that the whole of our trade with Spain will be jeopardised by the Reds having looted all the gold?

There was no reply.

ARCHDUKE OTTO AND THE CORONATION MONARCHIST INQUIRIES IN LONDON

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Vienna, Feb. 10. According to Legitimist quarters the Monarchist leader, Dr. Friedrich von Wiesner, who will lecture before the Royal Institute for International Affairs in London to-morrow has a commission to inquire whether the presence of Archduke Otto and ex-Empress Zita at the Coronation celebrations would be welcome.

A leading article in to-day's official Wiener Zeitung deals with the Hapsburg restoration in a manner which indicates that the responsible leaders of Austria look upon the return of Archduke Otto as the best ultimate assurance of permanent security.

The paper says that threats from outside have given a decisive impetus to the revival of Monarchism in this country. If a new Monarchy is to be established, however, it cannot be brought about by a spontaneous act. The time must be ripe for it. The nation must gain the conviction that the Monarchy is the only possible solution, and it would have to be a "social Monarchy of the people". Austria needs a strengthening of the authoritarian idea, but this final stage is not yet reached.

Alternatively, Mr. Claricoats suggested that lower layer of the earth's atmosphere, normally important in radio communication, were now reflecting these waves.

"Our competition lasts over four week-ends," he added, "in two sections, so that from the varying conditions experienced we may be able to collect some valuable information."

SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY

There are so many organisations in this Colony which exist in name only, and there have been others launched with much enthusiasm, only to die ere long from sheer inertia, that it is gratifying to note the continued strength and virility of the Kowloon Residents' Association. This body has not only continued in existence for a period of seventeen years, but it can point to a very fine record of work on behalf of the community across the harbour. It is, in fact, an essential mouthpiece for the purpose of keeping before the authorities the municipal needs of the peninsula, of which its officials have a very clear conception and concerning which they devote much time and effort for the communal good. It is clear, also, from the exhaustive record of the Association's activities contained in the annual report, as well as from the survey given at Thursday's meeting of the members which it still has in hand, that the Association probes deeply into the major problems with which it deals, whilst at the same time paying due heed to matters of lesser importance, matters which, none the less, touch many questions affecting the amenities of everyday life. Whilst the Association works wherever possible in close co-operation with the Government, it does not hesitate, when the need arises, to be critical of official shortcomings. So much is apparent from a reading of the President's speech at the annual meeting. Matters touched upon varied from bus fares to the need of proper care of lepers, in which latter connection the Government action in dispersing a colony of stricken people, after destroying their huts, without making any effort to accord them treatment, was rightly condemned. The necessity for better street lighting was also commented upon, as also was the inadequate means taken for the upkeep of roadways and the desirability of stricter control of motor traffic. It is mainly through the persistent efforts of the Association that the Central

A legal heritage his—Hon. Sir Henry Pollock, K.C.

THE recent passing of Sir Frederick Pollock, Bt., K.C., is another reminder of the extraordinary legal history of the family of whom the Hon. Sir Henry Pollock, K.C., of Hongkong is a descendant.

In the Pollock family the first baronet was Sir Frederick Pollock, Lord Chief Baron, in the former court of the Exchequer. He held that high office from 1844 to 1866 and died four years later. He enjoyed the unique distinction of K.T. (Knight of the Thistle) as a tribute to his Scottish ancestry, but possibly his large family of 26 was an impediment to his accepting the peerage which was usually conferred on Lord Chief Barons of that day. The Chief Baron had two eminent brothers, each of whom had 12 children. One was Sir David Pollock, Chief Justice of Bombay, and another was Sir George Pollock, Bt., who with General Nott, went to the relief of Kabul in 1842, and in his later days became Field Marshall and Constable of the Tower of London.

On the death of the Chief Baron, the baronetcy descended to Sir W. F. Pollock who was senior Master in the High Court of Justice in London and Queen's Remembrancer for many years.

The third baronet was the late Sir Frederick Pollock, K.C. He was a jurist consult of international reputation whose opinion was sought by Sir John Simon as to the form that the instrument of abdication of Edward VIII should take. He wrote his advice from memory and from a sick bed. He died on January 18 this year at the age of 91. The baronetcy has now descended to his only son John, historian and dramatist, chiefly known for his remarkable work for the Russian Red Cross during the war.

To return again to the children of the Chief Baron, it is worthy of record that his son Sir Charles attained office as Baron of Exchequer being the last but one to hold that title before it was abolished. Another son, Mr. George Pollock was for many years Master of the High Court of Justice in London and later, Senior Master and Queen's Remembrancer. Mr. Henry Pollock another son, was also a Master of the High Court of Justice while another, Sir Richard Pollock, K.C.S.I., had a distinguished career in the Indian Civil Service.

One of Sir Richard's sons, Sir Adrian has been City Chamberlain since 1912. Sir Edward Pollock, another son of the Chief

Soon, the "Yague Column" became famous in the Legion and attracted the best recruits, though his method did not command the approval of some of the other leaders.

When General Franco started his rising against the Government of the Left in Spain and imported Moors and Legionaries from Morocco, Yague and his troops took a prominent part in the fighting, winning many spectacular dashes. They were full of daring and carried the positions of Government troops at the point of the bayonet. The Yague Column fought at Badajoz and Toledo, afterwards participating in the siege of Madrid. When Government militiamen at Almendralejo who had resisted the rebels for days surrendered on condition that their lives would be spared, Yague ordered them to be shot without trial.

Baron was for 25 years, was an official Referee in the High Court of Justice in London.

Amongst the Chief Baron's grandsons were the late Viscount Hanworth, Master of the Rolls from 1923 till his death a few months ago, Dr. Bertram Pollock, Bishop of Norwich since 1910, and the Hon. Sir Henry Pollock, K.C., of Hongkong, whose long local career is well-known.

Yague Said: "Shoot, No Trial!"

ONE of the most prominent leaders under General Franco is Colonel Yague. Ruthless, efficient and ambitious, he typifies the new style of army commander.

Smith enlisted in the Royal Engineers in 1920, and, after serving with an experimental bridging company until 1923, he came to this Colony and stayed five years. In 1929 he became Education Instructor and Electrical Instructor to the 1st A.A. Railway Link With

Far East

WHEN the Canton Hankow railway is officially opened, spare a thought for Trevithick who first ran a steam carriage on a railway.

Richard Trevithick has a most interesting link with the Far East. One of his sons, Charles, came out to Japan when that country was starting railways, as adviser to Government. He married a Japanese lady, and one of his sons is Captain Okuno, probably the most popular skipper in N.Y.K. service to-day. Okuno learned seamanship on British vessels, but later adopted his mother's name, and took Japanese nationality. He was in London in 1933, attended the Westminster abbey centenary service to his grandfather, being accompanied by his two sisters, who have settled in England. His distinguished forebear won engineering fame in all parts of world, notably South America. In 1828, he unsuccessfully petitioned Parliament for reward for inventions, and died penniless at Deptford in 1838. Thanks to the Institute of Engineers and other bodies, he is now being given his correct place in history.

Pop Parker

Robert Lynd's Saturday Essay

Is It Right to Play Games?

A NEW vicar, the Rev. John Penrose, has arrived in grounds by the Hornsey Burgeses' Association, when the Brixton, preaching, not local borough council decided only a very old Gospel, but a fairly old interpretation of the Gospel. The Gospel is good, but I am not so sure about the interpretation of the Gospel.

The vicar condemns many things which to most people seem innocent enough—among them, dancing, films, theatres, cards and smoking on the part of women. He declares that "no Christian woman would use make-up." And he is obviously convinced that the pleasures and practices which he condemns are inconsistent with Christianity.

I am willing to admit that if people were perfect saints, they would have no time or interest for films, cards or dancing. They would be indifferent to most of our amusements—even to cricket and knock-knock. They would be absorbed in other and more serious things. This does not mean, however, that these things are sinful for ordinary human beings. It means merely that saints can do without most of the innocent recreations that help to make life pleasanter for ordinary people.

Mr. Penrose himself admits the need of recreation for ordinary people. He is in favour of tennis, picnics, bagatelle, table tennis and darts.

Well, as for darts, it is difficult to imagine St. Francis setting out to become an expert at the game. And, apart from this, is not Mr. Penrose a little Even as regards gambling, I have never been able to understand on what grounds many people declare that gambling is essentially and inevitably un-Christian. I can see that gambling to excess is immoral. But gambling as a game—gambling with money that one can well afford to lose—seems to me as innocent as the indulgence in any other form of luxury, whether a dinner in one of the best restaurants or motoring her pleasure.

I confess I never feel more innocent than when risking what, for some reason or other, is called a modest sixpence on a game of backgammon. I return to my original point.

It is well to remember that almost every form of amusement has at one time or another been condemned by somebody. Novel-reading, for example. I once knew a clergyman who thought it was wrong for a Christian to read novels. When he was 60, his son persuaded him to read "Q's" admirable story, "The Splendid Spur." As a result, he became a convert to novel-reading. And, strange as it may seem, he remained as good a Christian as before.

Now, I am willing to admit that novels, theatres, films, cards, smoking (for men as well as women), betting and even football do a great deal of harm. A greater deal of good in making human beings—whose life is for the most part no joke—innocently happy.

And it seems to me that the object of the churches ought to be to make people good enough Christians to extract as much of the good as is possible and as little of the evil from these pleasures.

Smith lives in a world that is only a tiny fragment of a vast universe, which affects every part of his life every moment of time. This is another of the articles in the "SMITH INTO SUPERMAN" series on the importance to Smith of his UNIVERSE

MONG the millions of stars in Smith's Universe, one—the Sun—governs and regulates his life.

It controls the seasons, the climate and the weather, supplies him with light, heat and energy, and helps to build up his food. It is easy to see why his ancestors worshipped it as a god.

Smith eats vegetable matter and meat. He dresses himself in products obtained from plants or animals. But ultimately both his food and his clothes originate in plants—all flesh and all raiment is grass.

Plants themselves are chemical machines that extract carbon from the gases of the air and change it into sugar, starch and wood. To do this job they need energy which the green colouring matter they contain—called chlorophyll—extracts from the sunlight. Without the sunlight, they cannot function at all: Smith lives on transformed sunshine.

COAL, too, is trapped sunlight. Thousands of years ago, in primeval swamps, trees grew to a great size, died and decayed. Their fossilised remains are now used to raise steam and to warm our houses. Even water-power comes from the sun. It is its heat that evaporates the water of the sea and carries it to the tops of the hills, from which it descends to drive our mills or turbines.

The ball-shaped mass of stuff on which Smith lives whirls round a line joining its North and South Poles. As it whirls it exposes him to the sun and then carries him into the darkness: he calls these alternations day and night.

The earth also rushes round the sun describing in a year a gigantic figure which is nearly, but not quite, a circle.

The line round which it whirls daily is not, however, at right angles to that which joins its centre to the sun. As a result, the mid-day sun is not always at the same height in the heavens, nor are all days of the same length.

All living things share in this two-fold rhythm of days and years. Many of them show it in the structure of their bodies: the wood of trees and the shells of oysters, for instance, show yearly growth rings.

Smith shares in all this. He, too, regulates his life, his food, his activities by the seasons and his routine according to the presence or absence of the sun.

Smith's moods and temper depend on the weather, but the wind and the rain are governed by the sun. Its rays warm the ground, which then warms the air in contact with it.

This air expands and rises, and the wind is merely the current of air which moves in to take its place: its energy is thus derived from the sun's radiation.

The sun is 92,000,000 miles away from the earth in winter and 93,000,000 miles away in summer; it is 1,300,000 times as bulky and 300,000 times as massive as the earth.

These numbers are too great to mean much to us, but we understand them better when we work out that a train moving at 100 m.p.h. would take 100 years to reach the sun and that even a shell from a naval gun would take three years.

On a world as large as the sun Smith would find it difficult to move. Everything would seem so heavy; he himself would turn the scale at about a ton and a half instead of his usual 10 or 11 stone. He'd probably be crushed by his own weight.

But he could never stand the heat, even if he wore the thickest asbestos suit, for the temperature is about 10,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

So hot a surface loses heat at a tremendous rate: two square inches of it radiate enough energy to keep a 12 h.p. car going at full speed.

Where it all comes from is still a mystery; certainly it cannot be just ordinary burning. For even if the sun had been made of solid anthracite coal it would not have lasted 5,000 years. Probably it contains vast reserves of radium-like elements, which change their substance directly into radiation.

We can find out what the sun is made of by examining carefully the colour of the light it sends out. Smith would know most of the substances present up there—iron, carbon, hydrogen, and so forth.

One of the elements present in the sun is called helium, which means "the sun substance." For a long time it was known only by the peculiar yellow light which it adds to sunlight, and was thought not to occur on earth. Forty years ago, however, it was isolated by an English chemist and is now largely used for filling balloons.

Smith can picture the sun to himself as a great globe of highly compressed vapours. Surrounding it is a corona of flames, shooting out into space for many thousands of miles. He can only see this adequately during a total eclipse, because usually the disc of the sun is too bright.

Have you noticed that wet dry hot summers, about every eleven years? An eleven-year cycle can be found elsewhere than in the weather—in the grain of wood, for instance.

The cause, as you might expect, lies in the sun. If you examine it carefully through a piece of heavily smoked glass, you may sometimes see some small black specks. With a telescope you could be fairly certain to see them every time you look.

If you counted the number that can be seen every day for, say, thirty or forty years, you would notice that it changes continually. Every eleven years the number of spots increases to a maximum and then again diminishes.

They are not really dark at all, but hotter and brighter than our hottest furnace. But they are cooler than their surroundings, and when there are many of them the sun radiates less energy. The earth, in consequence, receives less heat, and changes in weather and climate follow the variations of our star.

Sun-spots are the seat of electric and magnetic storms, and these affect us in many ways: magnetic compasses all over the world are disturbed and telegraph services are sometimes disorganized.

The sun emits not only visible light, but also ultra-violet rays and X-rays. Most of these are filtered out by the atmospheres of the sun and of the earth. Otherwise the colour of the sun would be a full, rich blue instead of a yellowish white.

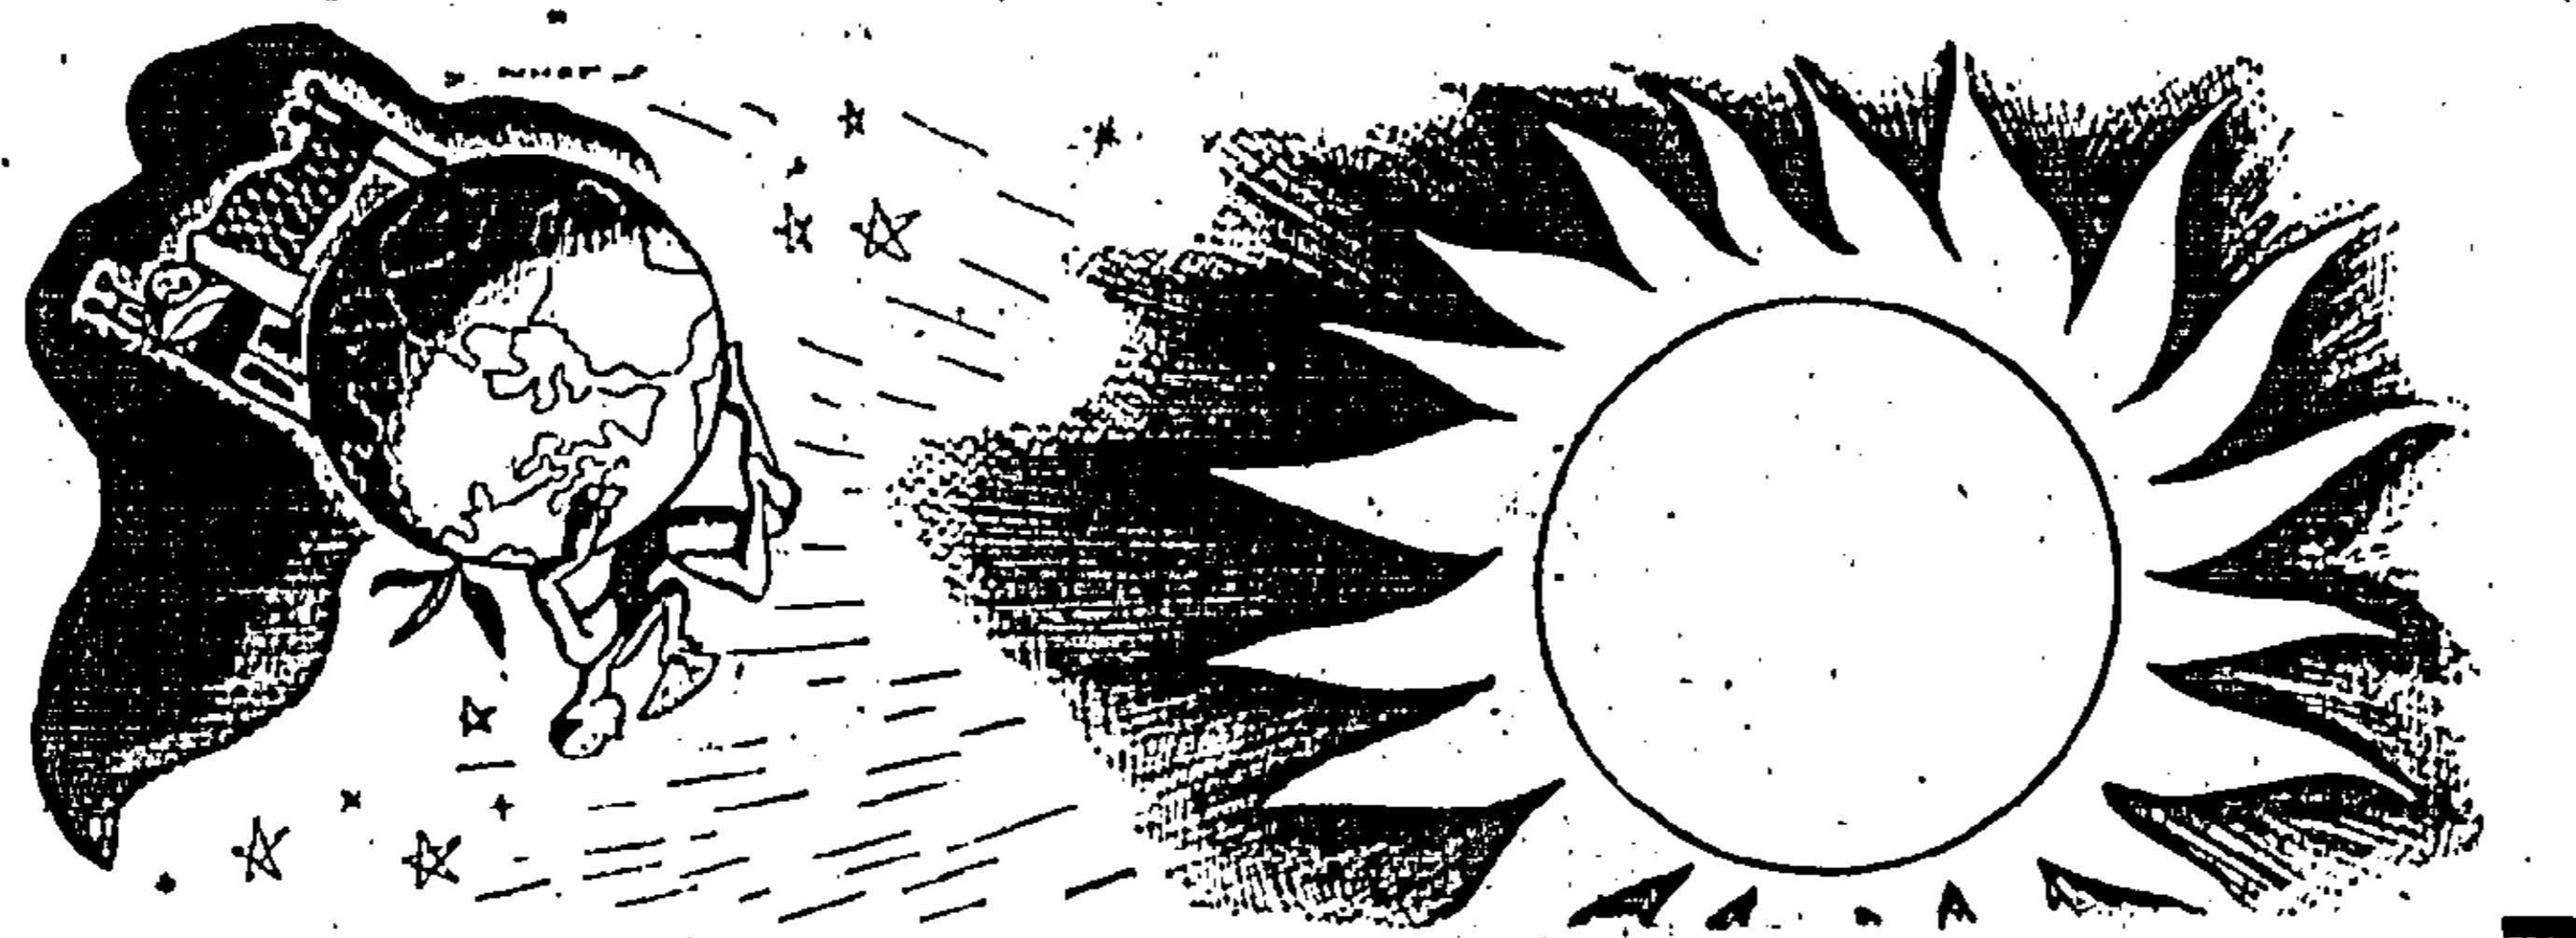

All this is fortunate for Smith: his body is too delicate to stand the full impact of over-energetic ultra-violet radiation and would be destroyed by it. But a little of it—just about as much as gets through—is excellent for him. It colours his skin to a pleasing brown and builds up vitamins in it.

STREAMS of electrical particles from the sun occasionally strike the earth. They are affected by magnetic forces and enter our atmosphere near the Poles. Their passage through the air makes it glow like the gas in an advertising sign. Such an "aurora" can sometimes be seen even as far south as Britain.

All these radiations transform the air which absorbs them. In the upper layers oxygen is changed into ozone. Other parts become electrified, and are called the Heaviside and the Appleton layers.

These act like mirrors, reflecting radio waves back to the ground. Without them long-distance broadcasting would be impossible; only those stations that could be seen would be heard.

Smith cannot even listen-in without the helpful co-operation of the sun!

"The ball-shaped mass of stuff on which Smith lives whirls round a line joining its North and South Poles. As it whirls it exposes him to the sun, and then carries him into darkness."

The real TRUTH about COLDS
you CAN'T cure them, but you CAN prevent them

EVERY week some one estimates afresh how much colds cost the world. Being a rough guess, it always varies: some one has said about £3 per person per year. Whatever it is, it is pretty serious.

Every fortnight from October to April a new cure is announced from the laboratories, to the infirmary of the research-workers concerned, who promptly deny it as premature in the medical journals.

Every month a new book by a nature-cure writer announces a cure which turns out to be the usual list of instructions that any general practitioner could give: excellent treatment sometimes, but never a cure.

The truth is: you can prevent a cold, you can treat it, but you cannot cure it. If you understand what a cold really is, you will know why.

WHAT is a cold? It is an infection of your blood-stream that has managed to slip through your body's first line of defence against infection—the delicate mucous membrane of the nose.

The infecting germ itself has never been seen by human eye. Like the germ of measles, it is surmised to be a "filterable virus"; that is to say, a germ so small that no filter, however delicate, can hold it, and no microscope, however powerful, can reveal it.

It is found everywhere—even in your own throat. To avoid the danger do it be wary of:

1. Sneezers.

2. Telephones (turn your head from the "mike" when you listen).

3. Telephone kiosks.

4. Buses, trains, stuffy rooms and theatres.

FIRST line of defence is the lining of your nose. Five hundred quarts of air pass it every hour on the way to your lungs. In Hongkong, that amount of air contains about 14,000 germs. Only few reach the lungs if that lining is healthy.

It has two weapons against the germ:

1. The mucus which it produces to cover and protect it and to entrap and kill germs.

2. The hair-like fibres which line it in millions—called cilia (pronounced silla-ya)—which drive the entrapped germs to the nostrils, where they can be sneezed out.

YOUR second line of defence against infection is the blood-stream itself.

Once the germ has slipped past the first line, it may take the emergency reserves of the body about three days to drive it out via the kidneys, skin and liver.

Dogs powerful enough to kill the germ when it is already in your blood-stream would do you harm. That is why you cannot cure a cold already begun: you can merely alleviate its discomforts and help the body to get rid of it.

That too explains the principles of treatment.

TREATMENT ITEM NO. 1: the nose.

Blow your nose as little and as gently as you can. The increased air-pressure in the nose may blow infection back into the ear to cause inflammation and deafness.

To relieve the depressing "blocked-nose" feeling, submerge the face in warm water while the breath is held; the water finding its own level in the nostrils will gently flush out the excess of mucus.

TREATMENT ITEM NO. 2: the blood-infection.

Go slow and give your reserves a chance. Carry on with your work—if you must—at half-speed. Do the things that would worry you if you left them undone; postpone the rest.

If the cold is really severe, better bed than the cold never kills, but its complications may.

To flush the poisons out of the blood, take plenty of hot sweetened orangeade or lemonade.

The fluid flushes the kidneys: the heat stimulates the skin to perspiration; the sugar and the fruit-juices diminish the "acidosis" or acidity of the blood which is responsible for many of the discomforting symptoms of the cold.

TREATMENT ITEM NO. 3: the symptoms of discomfort.

If you are still uncomfortable despite these measures, take two aspirins and one every three hours.

HAVING survived the cold, why not protect yourself against those risks by making yourself cold-proof?

Increase your cold-resistance, and be wary of the germ and its haunts (already discussed).

To increase cold-resistance: keep well and as happy as you can—keep your nose healthy and unobstructed, supply cold-fighting vitamins by including one ounce of butter, one pint of milk and some fresh fruit in each day's diet, keep the skin healthy by giving it all the sun and air (air-bathe while shaving or hair-brushing) you can.

Questions for Housewives

- What is poor man's goose?
- The disease of rickets in children is often due to a diet deficiency. Which special foods would you give your child in order to safeguard it from this disease?
- In a small matter of interior decoration where is wood sometimes used as a substitute for silk, velvet, cretonne, etc.?

Answers:

- "Faggots"—a dish of baked, seasoned liver—is sometimes called this, but there are several variations. Here's one: You need 1 sheep's heart and liver, 3 onions, 2 lbs. of potatoes, a generous teaspoonful of powdered sage, salt and pepper to taste... Prepare and parboil the potatoes, then slice them thinly. Wash heart and liver well, thoroughly dry and cut in thick slices. Prepare and chop onions; mix sage and seasoning. Grease a fireproof dish and arrange in it alternate layers of potato and meat, and sprinkle each layer with sliced onions and seasoning. Cover with greased paper and bake in a medium oven for an hour and a half. Diced bacon may be used as an additional ingredient if liked. In any case serve it with an apple sauce as you make for real goose.
- Rickets is invariably due to an insufficiency of Vitamin D. This vitamin is present in the fat of cream, but more largely so in cod-liver oil and halibut-liver oil. 3. Painted wooden panels are used frequently as a finish to curtains. They should be fitted by a good carpenter.

New Song For Britons

WRITTEN IN HALF AN HOUR

Words and Music by BRAYDON DELL AND A. MORRIS-GILBERT

A TUNE which may become the patriotic song of the year—the new "Land of Hope and Glory"—has been composed by an amateur who had never before written a note of music in his life.

He is Mr. M. Braydon Dell, the children's author.

IN HALF AN HOUR

Jumping from bed one night, he captured a melody which skinned through his mind and kept him from sleep.

Next morning he remembered the tune as clearly as when it first came to him. Suddenly it struck him as ideal for a patriotic song.

He hummed it over to Mr. A. Morris-Gilbert, the composer, who took it down. Mr. Dell explained his idea, and, while he wrote the lyric, Mr. Morris-Gilbert composed the music for the verse.

The whole thing was finished inside half an hour.

The song is called "The Empire's Call," and this is the chorus:

Sons of our Empire rallying on
Thus ranged to serve their King,
Whilst on the tide come those that died

The clarion call to bring.

"We died for Peace and Freedom."

"Was our great gift in vain?"

"Our richer dust says arm you must

"Or it will come again!"

The song is to be offered to Mr. Duff Cooper, Minister for War, as a recruiting song. In the meantime, one of the biggest music publishers, Messrs. Chappell, has decided to publish it.

"We need a patriotic song now, if ever we did," said Mr. Dell.

"Rouget de Lisle, who composed the 'Marseillaise,' did not know a note of music, yet his song caught up a nation. But for the 'Marseillaise,' there might never have been a French Revolution."

"If this song teaches us to arm and draw recruits to the army, it has been worth doing."

Baron Says Wife's Stepfather Slandered Him For Revenge

"POISONOUS ENTOURAGE" OF BARONESS

Husband's Letter

A BARON who alleged that his wife's stepfather slandered him "for revenge" following a dispute over upbringing of the baron's young son claimed damages in the King's Bench Division in London recently.

Baron Victor de Stempel, of Hallam Street, Portland Place, W., sued

Mr. Walter Dunkels of Devonshire Street, Portland Place, for alleged slander and breach of contract in connection with his employment with a City firm of diamond brokers.

During the hearing counsel quoted a letter from the Baron to his wife in which he referred to "your disgraceful entourage, so poisonous for a young woman and mother."

Opening plaintiff's case, Mr. Norman Smith, Colonial Secretary, denied that he spoke the words complained of or that they were defamatory. He also denied privilege and justification, and denied that he induced Mr. Otto Dunkels to dismiss the plaintiff.

Baron de Stempel, said Mr. Birckett, was of Russian birth and a member of the Russian aristocracy who became naturalised on March 29, 1935.

Mrs. Vera Dunkels, formerly Mrs. Beaumont, was the mother of Baroness de Stempel, plaintiff's wife.

CONTROVERSY AROUND BOY

In June, 1928, when he married Miss Beaumont, who was then 19, the baron was not a man of means. Mr. Walter Dunkels had powerful influence in the diamond trade, and Baron de Stempel became employed by Dunkels and Company, which was really Mr. Otto Dunkels, a cousin of defendant.

Shortly afterwards Baron de Stempel and his wife went to live at Chester Place, Hyde Park. The lease of the house had been given by the defendant. In 1929 the only child of the marriage was born.

"It is around this boy that this great controversy has been aroused," said Mr. Birckett.

"For a considerable time this marriage was quite happy. Then there began to arise differences of opinion which were largely concerned with the upbringing of the boy and the environment in which he lived.

"The father thought the environment was becoming undesirable because of certain people with whom his wife was associating."

Mr. Birckett then read a letter from Baron de Stempel to his wife dated December 7, 1932, and beginning "Little One."

"I think you know too well my fond feelings towards you, and I don't wish you to return in any spirit of sacrifice...." It ran:

"If either of us has to suffer, I would rather it was not you, notwithstanding that the circumstances known to you have unfortunately been discussed too much and left only bitterness in the heart.... I only hope that you will soon realise that your disgraceful entourage—so poisonous for a young woman and mother—made me go on living in this house...."

The Baron's case was that, because he took a firm line about access to his boy and had proposed terms which were not in accordance with the wishes of Mr. Walter Dunkels, the latter slandered him in his business and procured Mr. Otto Dunkels to break the contract of employment so as to make the plaintiff powerless.

Mr. Birckett said that Mr. Walter Dunkels had used his good offices to get the employment for Baron de Stempel.

The Baron's remuneration, based on a percentage, had been:

1928	£720 1932 (The first £2,000 signs of recovery)
1929	£118 200
1930 (The depth of 1933	£550
the slump) 1934	£300
Nothing and 1935	£2,000

YOU OUGHT TO TURN VICTOR OUT

Turning to the alleged slanders, Mr. Birckett said he would deal with those in which the defendant admitted. In answer to interrogatories, having used the words complained of.

In November, 1935, defendant said to Mr. Otto Dunkels: "I am not interested in Dunkels and Company, or their clients' business, so long as Victor (the Baron) is in your employ." Between January and November, 1936, he repeatedly said to Mr. Otto Dunkels: "You ought to turn Victor out."

The next slander, said counsel, was in October, 1936, when the defendant said to Mr. Otto Dunkels: "Victor is a Jew-hater."

YOU CAN KICK HIM OUT

"Baron de Stempel will tell you," continued Mr. Birckett, "that the members of the Diamond Corporation are for the most part Jews, and to say that the Baron was a Jew-

Baron de Stempel, is of Russian birth and a member of the Russian aristocracy. He became naturalised on March 29, 1935.

According to evidence by Baron de Stempel, the Corporation controls about 85 per cent. of the world's production of rough diamonds.

went to Finland, Sweden, Holland and France. He was first married in 1916. Between 1916 and 1928 he had spent the money he had on leaving Russia. During that time his wife was not very well and he had been a professional dancer at one time to give her the comfort and care she needed.

After questions about his married life, Mr. Birckett read an extract from a letter which the Baron wrote to his present wife in December, 1932:

"I do hope you will understand how unpleasant all this has been to me and that your disgraceful entourage was poisonous for a young wife and mother...."

Mr. Birckett: What was the nature of your complaint?—Unfortunately my wife was very young at the time and she did not realise that the people with whom she was mixing acted badly on her. They used to drink rather a lot and were people who, in my opinion, lived rather loosely.

Baron de Stempel said he met Mr. and Mrs. Franklin, friends of the Dunkels, after a visit to his wife at her mother's house in August, 1933, and told them he did not like the way the boy was being brought up. He was angry because of an incident at the house.

Mr. Justice Swift: What made you angry?—My wife was not well and was in bed. There were two friends—a man and a woman—with her, and an indecent conversation was taking place. It naturally upset me. I told my wife there was no room for me there, and on the way home, met the Franklin. I said what I did to them on the spur of the moment because I was dissatisfied.

Mr. Justice Swift: What made you angry?—My wife was not well and was in bed. There were two friends—a man and a woman—with her, and an indecent conversation was taking place. It naturally upset me. Roumanian Crown Prince Michael Becomes Ford Apprentice In Bucharest Plant, Earning 20 Cents An Hour

ONE MAN'S "FEAR"

"I fear the electric light will not be installed in the prison by the end of 1938 unless we get more electricians in prison. Very few electricians are coming into the jail."—Extract from speech by Mr. W. Day Broughton, presenting the report of the Prison Visiting Committee to Birmingham Justices.

£3,000 DIAMONDS FOUND IN £7 10s. DESK

Melbourne, Jan. 10.
Uncut diamonds worth £3,000 were found wrapped in cotton wool in a secret drawer of an old secretary by a woman who bought it for £7 10s. at an auction at Geelong, Victoria.
It is believed the diamonds were hidden 200 years ago.

Bucharest, Feb. 20.
Three times a week the former king and present Crown Prince of Roumania becomes an ordinary factory worker, "No. 158" and, exactly like the rest of the factory staff, is subjected to the strict labour rules prevailing at the local Ford Motor Works.

When upon King Carol's orders, his only son and heir, 15-year-old Prince Michael, and his 13 classmates had to choose a trade, the prince and two of his comrades decided to become motor mechanics.

The directors of Ford agreed to employ the three boys on condition that they receive the same treatment as other workers.

This corresponded exactly with the King's own wishes. So the prince became apprentice "No. 158" among many hundreds of other workers in the large shop.

When he has crossed the factory gate, Michael must forget all about royal prerogatives and obey the foreman. Without his permission the prince, or, rather, "No. 158," is not allowed to leave his workshop.

All his fellow workers have been instructed—and act accordingly—to treat him just like any other employee.

At present, Michael is riveting frames and will have to continue to do so for some time.

Apparently he enjoys this manual work, and his foreman is satisfied with the apprentice's application and ability, and he feels certain that the tall boy will eventually become a full-fledged mechanic.

Like all other apprentices, Michael earns 20 lei, 20 cents, an hour.

In accordance with the Rumanian laws, he also is insured by his employer against accident, illness and old age.

Of course, King Carol is careful to see that the factory work does not interfere with the Crown Prince's cultural education.

Michael and his two companions, therefore, go to the Ford plant only when school is over, but they manage to squeeze into their free time about three or four hours of factory work, three times a week.

Bad for the Rhino

Nairobi, Feb. 21.
A rhinoceros, apparently annoyed with the mail train from Mombasa to Nairobi, charged the engine.

The engine won but the train was delayed for half an hour while the carriage was being disengaged from the cow-catcher.

The latest developments in the optical industry were shown recently at the Optical Trade Exhibition in London. Photograph shows a new sight-testing apparatus being demonstrated.

TOO FAT FOR HER UNIFORM

Waitress Who Had to Reduce —or Lose Her Job

It was a serious matter to this waitress when she put on weight. She had to get it off. This is her own account of how she did it:

"Last year I began to put on weight, and to look my age—39. The manageress called my attention to the fact that my uniform did not fit me. I tried dieting, with no result, and I was getting desperate. Then I saw Kruschen Salts advertised, and tried them at the same time eating no potatoes or white bread. My weight gradually went back to normal—9 st. 7 lb. I had put on 28 lbs. in a year, and I lost it in less than six months—thanks to Kruschen Salts."—(Mrs.) C. E.

Here's the recipe that banishes fat—take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts daily in a glass of hot water before breakfast.

The stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are turned up, and the pure, fresh blood containing these six salts is carried to every part of the body, and this is followed by "that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity.

WHEN YOU FEEL like THIS

Tragedy To Two Old Maids

Lille, Feb. 28.

Policemen often have hard jobs on their hands, but the police of Lambersart, a village near here, had an experience which they will never stop talking about for the rest of their lives. Sent to collect taxes long overdue from two mysterious old maidens, they found one of them dead for a month and the other mad.

For many years the two women, Marie and Gabrielle Cantraine, had lived a secluded life at Lambersart, living on the income of a small investment in the steel industry of the North. When their income fell with the depression their tiny savings melted away and the two women decided to have a sit-down strike on their taxes. Within a short time the strike was general, and none of the merchants of the district could get payment on their debts.

When firmer measures were tried the two women became earnest. They locked their doors and barricaded them, refused to take in the letters from the mail box. The house became silent, it almost seemed as if no one was left alive inside. Renewed visits of the owner of the house to collect his rents were useless. Before the barricaded doors and windows, collectors went away quickly for they never knew how much further the two women would go. The mailbox overflowed with bills.

Finally, after more than a month of this state of siege, the angry creditors resorted to the law. Two policemen approached the house. They knocked and knocked, but not a sign of life was heard. The house seemed like a tomb. They felt like going home and putting the job off to the next day, but finally got their courage again. A locksmith was called and finally fitted a key to the door.

WEIRD DISCOVERY

They entered the silent, dusty hall, and suddenly heard frenzied shrieks from the next room. The next minute a woman threw herself at them shrieking, trying to beat them off with her hands. Curious, the police held her quietly and entered the dining room from which she had come.

The tomblike silence of the house, the barricaded door, a screaming woman, all these the policemen had bravely surmounted, but what they saw there was a little strong. Stretched on a table and covered with a sheet, was obviously the body of all elated.

"What is that on that table?" they asked the sister Marie.

"That's only my sister. She's been asleep for a month, I'm waiting for her to wake up."

Piled around the low table on which the woman lay were piles of cans and rubbish of all sorts. Stepping over this the police lifted the sheet and found a wizened, dried woman's body, without any traces of decomposition.

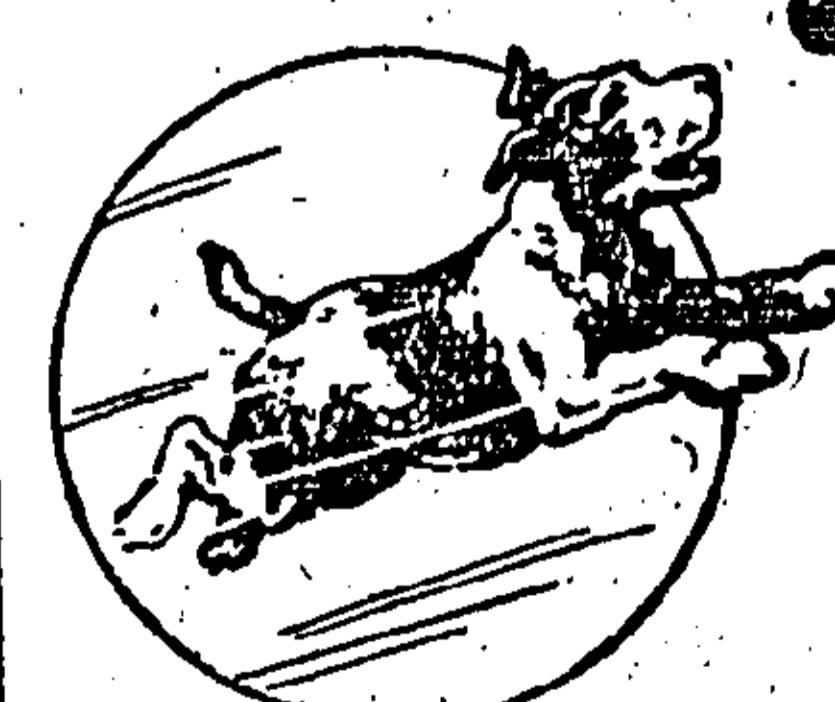

"She'll wake up soon," said the sister as they let the sheet fall back on her face. "I've prayed so much for her that she'll surely come back to me."

The police doctor came quickly when he was called, examined the body and confirmed the sister's evidence. Gabrielle Cantraine had been dead for about a month. For the entire month her sister Marie had slept beside her, eating and living there all the day through hoping that her sister would awake. She had eaten canned food, and not daring to leave the body for an instant had prepared her meals and thrown away the empty cans in the dining room.

At the morgue the autopsy revealed that Gabrielle had died a natural death. Still insisting that her sister would awaken soon, her sister Marie was led to the insane asylum. The village treats its policemen to-day with respect, as befits heroes who dared to go into the strange house.

THE New Ford V-8 for 1937 is the most beautiful Ford car ever offered. It is built in only one size—with one standard of roomy comfort and modern appearance. But you may have either the improved 85-horsepower V-8 engine for maximum performance—or the new 60-horsepower V-8 engine for maximum economy. The smaller engine makes possible a lighter car—a lower priced car, with lower operating costs—and permits still more people to enjoy the smoothness, quietness and reliability of the V-type 8-cylinder engine.

IMPROVED 85-HORSEPOWER V-8 ENGINE — DRIVE IT AND WATCH THE SPEEDOMETER!

If any single factor contributes more than another to establish the Ford as the quality car in the low-price field, it is the V-type 8-cylinder engine. More than three million owners are now enjoying its superior performance on the road. When you drive the 1937 Ford with the 85-horsepower V-8 engine, you are master of a power plant that gives everything you can possibly demand in speed and acceleration. To-day it is a better engine than ever—with a better cooling system and new smoothness. Yet improved carburetion enables it to deliver its thrilling performance with unusually low gasoline consumption.

NEW 60-HORSEPOWER V-8 ENGINE — DRIVE IT AND WATCH THE FUEL GAUGE!

The new 60-horsepower V-type 8-cylinder engine is almost an exact replica of the 85—except for size, weight and power. It delivers V-8 smoothness and quietness—even at speeds up to 70 miles an hour—with gasoline mileage so high that it creates an entirely new standard of economy in modern motor car operation.

We invite you to see this new Ford car, and arrange to drive one equipped with the engine that fits your own needs.

New methods of mounting body and engine make this a quieter car.

SHOULD A CHRISTIAN FIGHT?

Church Assembly Discussion

PUBLIC SCHOOL PACIFISTS

By A Special Representative

A move to give a lead to the Nation on the issue of Peace and War, Disarmament and Disarmament, was instituted at the Church Assembly when a motion entitled "Peace and National Defence" was submitted.

The debate was adjourned after two and a half hours. In that time, successive speakers from the episcopal bench downwards made plain that the whole body of the Church has become aware of a responsibility greater than any with which it has been saddled during the last few years.

Outstanding features of the debate were:

Repeated declarations that the bearing of arms is an honourable Christian public service.

An impassioned speech by the Bishop of Birmingham (Dr. Burnes) in defence of pacifist principles.

Strong pleas for the union of England and Germany and other Christian nations against the forces of atheism.

REARMAMENT DEPLORED

The general effect of the motion is that the Assembly deplores general rearmament, calls upon Christians to promote international goodwill; and that it supports the Government in their efforts to uphold the Covenant of the League and to secure general reduction of armaments.

Finally, the Assembly is asked to recognise the right of the Government to the support of Christian citizens in maintaining such forces as the Government deem necessary in the pursuance of this policy.

The debate was conducted with no hint of partisan spirit or strong feeling. All the speakers but the Bishop of Derby (Dr. A. E. J. Rawlinson) were agreed that it was incumbent upon the Church to give a lead in times more troublous than any since the establishment of the Assembly. "We have to defend an ideal," declared the Dean of Winchester (Dr. E. G. Selwyn) in putting forward the motion. "Do we think that our country's heritage of liberty is worth while? That is the question which I would like my friends who are extreme pacifists to face. Their doctrine of unilateral disarmament is fundamentally anarchic."

THE LESSER EVIL

The Archdeacon of Coventry (the Ven. Richard Brook) deplored the effect that views held in the Universities and Public Schools were having upon recruiting and the numbers and quality of those offering themselves for this form of public service.

"War is always an evil thing," he said, "but there may be occasions on which it is the lesser of two evils, and therefore relatively right."

The Bishop of Birmingham put forward the pacifist view with extreme fervour. He told of men who were imprisoned for their defence of what they deemed to be Christian principles—of his efforts to promote peace by agreement at the time when "the principle of the knock-out blow prevailed." He told of the ineffectiveness of all defence measures among gas masks—in which the majority of those present would not survive."

The Provost of Coventry appealed to the Church to gather together the Christian people of the world. The great link between Germany and England, for example, was the existence in each country of millions of people who follow Jesus Christ. Other speakers emphasized this argument. There was the union of Christian peoples against war and atheism.

The debate was brought to an end after the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Rev. W. H. Torrance and the Bishop of Derby had expressed opposing points of view. Mr. Torrance favored complete disarray on the outbreak of war, unless the Church Assembly could make a definite pronouncement. The Bishop of Derby declared, "We shall not help at all by passing a clear-cut motion."

It Was Hot Enough To Fry Eggs.

Brisbane, Feb. 24.
Recently there appeared in an American journal a paragraph which stated that it was possible in one particular town that the inhabitants were able to fry eggs on the footpath. To find out how hot it was necessary to be before this feat could be accomplished, the Cunnamulla Times decided to experiment. Cunnamulla is in Queensland's hot belt.

Armed with a regulation frying pan, borrowed from a neighbour and an egg, the country paper's proprietor proceeded with the experiment. The pan was placed in the sun, and after a short while the egg was broken into it and in half an hour the egg had cooked hard. The thermometer reading was taken in the sun and registered 140 degrees.

TO-DAY'S BIG CRICKET MATCH MAY DECIDE THE CHAMPIONSHIP CLUB FAVoured TO WIN

(By "Veritas")

Harry Owen-Hughes and A. R. Minu are likely to be the central figures in to-day's first division cricket match which may decide the championship. The chances are that the Cricket Club wicket, always a trifle "sporty", will be on the soft side, and therefore "made to measure" for these two spin bowlers.

The H.K.C.C. ground had dried out a bit yesterday, but the impression I got was that it would need but a few overs to cut up to-day's wicket. Spin bowlers are likely to have a good time.

It is a bit risky trying to assess the possible outcome of this H.K.C.C. v. I.R.C. match, especially as I have had no opportunity of seeing the Indians play this season. I have watched one or two scratch Club teams figure in friendlies but usually it has been in case of Owen-Hughes versus the Rest.

To-day both teams constitute about the strongest combinations available. Club would appear to possess the more varied attack, with Bowker, Holden, Owen-Hughes and Duckitt forming the spearhead. The Indians look as though they will have to rely almost exclusively on Minu, Madur and Arculli.

Club, at least on paper, is definitely more solid in batting. Pearce, Stewart, Marshall, Owen-Hughes, Neve, Duckitt, Gillespie and Hayward are all regular run-setters, whereas the I.R.C. can only put their trust in A. H. Madur, Arculli, A. H. Rumjahn, and Nazarin. His clubmates are still waiting for Nazarin to reproduce something like his true form.

The odds appear to favour the Club, and I shall be surprised if they don't win. The Indians have done well this season, but have been a trifle lucky more than once. Club have certainly played the more confident cricket.

THE OTHER GAMES
Three other first division league matches are scheduled. Army visit Croydon, but it is doubtful whether they will do much better than to draw.

17-Year-Old In Davis Cup

AT 17 years of age, John Bromwich, has been chosen as one of the four men to represent Australia in the Davis Cup this year. The others are: J. H. Crawford, A. K. Quist and V. G. McGrath.

Like McGrath, Bromwich has a two-handed backhand. This season he beat Jack Crawford in the semi-final of the Australian championship and in the final of the Sydney championship.

He went down to Quist in the final of the South Australian championship but got his revenge in the semi-final of the New South Wales championship.

GERMAN DAVIS CUPPERS TO COMPETE IN U.S. CHAMPIONSHIPS

New York.
Baron Gottfried von Cramm's announcement that Germany's Davis cup team will compete in the United States this summer (national doubles and singles championships) is some of the most important and interesting tennis news of the young year.

It is important because it reflects well-founded confidence that Germany may capture the historic Davis trophy for the first time. It is interesting because it means that amateur German racket wielders will make their initial American appearance since the world war.

And if you recall the German Davis cuppers competing with Australia at Pittsburgh in 1914 when war was being declared at Potsdam, this trip will stir poignant memories—memories of war's declaration being withheld from the players until after they left the court—memories of a German team halted and interned in England while hastening home—memories of an Australian star skilled in battle.

Big blond von Cramm, Germany's No. 1 player, is captain of a team that at last has an even chance of winning the Davis cup before the team visits America and continues on its journey to Japan. Tennis experts in every land recognize this change.

You see, the Davis cup picture of 1937 is far different from last year.

When debonair, dark-haired Fred Perry turned professional, he left England's team with virtually no chance of reiterating the cup. And there are three other countries in full cry after the trophy—the United States, Australia and Germany. It's better than a 10 to 1 bet that one of those three countries will wrest the big silver bowl from England.

Germany has the same team nucleus as last year, with Von Cramm and Helmut Henkel competing in singles, and von Cramm and Hans Denker handling the doubles. And you will recall that Germany gave Australia a hard fight in the inter-zone final last year before losing three matches to two, after Von Cramm had to default a singles match because of an injured leg. Also remember that the 1936 Australian team eliminated the United States outfit in the American zone final, when the starspangled players unexpectedly lost the doubles.

America, Australia and Germany each claim that they will march a more formidable team into the court this year. The United States expects to have a bang-up outfit, with Don Budge and Gene Mako as the nucleus—and another performer from among Grant, Riggs or Allison. Sullivan's Jack Crawford and Adrian Quist have been bolstered by the sensational rise of Young John Bromwich. It looks like a three-cornered brawl in which Uncle Sam and the lads from "down under" will battle it out first in the United States, then the winner tangling with Germany in the inter-zone final. That victor should take the cup from weakened England in the challenge round without working up a sweat.

Whether or not Germany captures the bowl, the invasion of the Teuton tennismen will mark the first time that Rhineland rackets have appeared in the United States in 23 years.

Both Recreio Teams Win With Ease

Recreio "A" made certain of retaining the mixed doubles badminton league championship last night, when they visited the University and won by seven games to two.

Recreio have played nine matches without conceding a point, and cannot now be seriously challenged.

Recreio "B" enjoyed a handsome victory over St. John's Cathedral, taking all nine games at stake, and this places the Portuguese within striking distance of the runners-up position.

STRANGE TRICK OF FORTUNE Fincher And Hung In Great Form

(By "Veritas")

The story of the men's doubles Colony tennis championship match between E. C. Fincher and W. C. Hung and H. Owen-Hughes and A. I. Sullivan played at the Cricket Club yesterday can be told as follows:

Hung won the first game on service; Sullivan won the second game on service; Fincher won the third game on service; Owen-Hughes won the fourth game on service; Owen Hughes and Sullivan won the fifth game on Hung's service and led 40-15 on Sullivan's delivery for a 4-2 lead. They lost that game and the next nine, Fincher and Hung winning 6-3, 6-0.

The losers started in rollicking style. Both volleyed splendidly. Owen-Hughes shining in particular. Sullivan served excellently, and there were all the makings of a fast and close encounter.

Then came Sullivan's lapse in service, aided by Owen-Hughes' mistakes in twice going across the court to attempt volleys which he could not reach. Thereafter Hung and Fincher won as they liked.

The winners looked good. Good enough, anyhow, to reach the final again this year, unless they suffer a very sad lapse between now and then. Both were reliable in all phases of the game, volleying and smashing with precision and nice control.

Tsu Wai-pui and Paul Kong may beat them in the semi-final, but I don't think they will.

FATHER AND SON WIN

The only other doubles match of the afternoon was between E. L. II. Shute, the Father, and Kenneth Shute, the son, and B. O'M. Dean and J. F. Ley. The Shute combination won after an entertaining match.

Father took most of the ball, but son backed up nobly and the two made an understanding pair. Kenneth was splendid on return of service, especially in dealing with that of Leys, which is as good as anything seen locally. Leys has a second delivery which is not a whit slower than the first, and has the added merit of containing a fair amount of top spin which makes the ball kick high. A tantalising service to receive and return, yet Kenneth usually got back a respectable three-quarter length lob.

Both Shutes, in fact, lobbed with skill, using the right moment for such shots. They were also much more dependable than their opponents off the ground.

Deane was not up to par with the other three players, and committed innumerable errors overhead. Leys played a thoughtful game, and was always dangerous when serving. But he too was not steady enough under pressure.

The Shutes were worthy winners.

PLAYED WRONG GAME

Ma Chin-chong, who during the last few months has returned from Edinburgh University, was a trifle disappointed against Liang Sal-wah to whom he lost 6-4, 0-3. Ma revisited that he has a good idea of the game's shots, but he was lured into a false type of play, endeavouring to beat Liang at push-ball. It is asking trouble to try and out-Liang Liang!

Liang was perfectly content to let the raffles lengthen into an exchange of dozen or more strokes. He can play that game all day and usually win, as in this case.

Furthermore I don't believe this was Ma's usual type of play. He would have been better advised to have forced matters.

Liang was remarkably steady and he made his shots well. Afterwards he said to me: "Are you going to criticise my backhand this year?" I am most certainly not. He has greatly improved this hand, and can plant the ball both down the line and across court without any susceptible change of action. It is a good, sound, backhand, though I would still regard it as being primarily defensive.

Inhuman Test Cricket"

"PLAYING hours in England are inhuman," says W. M. Woodfull, the old Australian cricket captain, in supporting G. O. Allen's plea for a time-limit in Test cricket, to eliminate dull play.

Woodfull added that the English hours of 11.30 to 6.30 could be shortened, and the number of days increased to five. He was in favour of a limit of six days in Australia, and five in England.

Dr. Alan Robertson, of the Australian Board of Control, wants all matches played to a finish (says Reuter), and Dr. R. L. Morton (Victoria) says the importance of obtaining a decision in Test matches outweighs the points in favour of a time-limit.

The "Melbourne Herald" points out that of the 24 Test matches played in Australia since the war, 18 have lasted under six days, five seven days, and one eight days.

WEEK-END FOOTBALL ATTRACTION SHIELD MATCHES MOST LIKELY WINNERS

(By "Veritas")

Pride of place in the week-end football programme is given to the Senior and Junior Shield semi-finals, and because of them, the league schedule has been considerably curtailed.

This afternoon's Shield ties are being staged at Sookunpoor, tomorrow's at Causeway Bay.

Chances are that in the senior event, the finalists will be the two South China A.A. teams. They have avoided each other in the earlier rounds and both possess excellent prospects of surviving the week-end tests.

South China "A" are almost certain to beat Recreio this afternoon, though it must be admitted that the Portuguese have been strengthened by the inclusion of Remedios, the Shanghai expert, and that as a team, they are more to be respected now than a month ago.

Whether Recreio will risk taking A. V. Gosano out of the defence with the idea of bolstering up the attack remains to be seen. I doubt very much if they will, because Lee Wai-tong is turning out for the Chinese and it needs Gosano in the back line, to keep him in check.

On the other hand Recreio's main hope of winning must rest in obtaining a snap goal or two in the early minutes of the game. They cannot afford to be behind, but if they should gamble on A. V. Gosano giving them an early goal, they stand a chance of winning as it will enable them to concentrate on defence thereafter.

The other senior game is being played to-morrow between the Royal Welch Fusiliers and South China "B." With all due respects to the Caroline Hill outfit, I don't think they will be able to withstand the soldiers, who usually play just the right type of football for cup-ties. Another big who played so well against the Rumanian cousins on Thursday, lost to C. P. Ip yesterday will remain one of the mysteries of the present tournament. He looked a better player, and most decidedly made better shots. It is true he was a bit perplexed by Ip's incessant chop and cut, but this perplexity should not have remained longer than the first set. In fact there was plenty of evidence to indicate that he had conquered that particular type of return when the second set had finished.

Nevertheless he lost, though, he was probably the best loser in the tourney has seen yet. His free backhand drives were lovely to watch, though I rather imagine he would benefit on the forehand if he changed his grip. He is using the Western grip which so often forces one into a high trajectory unless the shot is perfectly timed. And the elbow is certainly too deeply bent, preventing complete freedom of movement in the swing and follow-through. There is little wrong with his service; it is a nice natural swing and well timed, with the weight excellently distributed. He also has quite a working knowledge of the volley, though his overhead has heaps of room for improvement.

Withal, he was a more versatile player than Ip, but less patient, and this, I suppose, is the answer to the question: why did he lose?

Ip's stolidness was allied with a certain amount of court-craft which gave the lie to the simple appearance of his shots. I like the way he varied his length, and, as for sustained accuracy...

LED 7-6, THEN CRAMP

I talked about marathon matches in describing one of last Monday's game, but it was short-distance affair compared with the encounter yesterday between Wei Chung and S. S. Hussain.

They started their match before 5 o'clock, and at 6.15 had to call it a day still undecided because Hussain was suffering from severe cramp. By that time they had played two sets of 8-6 and 7-5, and Hussain was leading 7-6 in the third.

From the earlier exchanges it looked as though Hussain would win at will, but Wei, whom I am told is a protege of Tsui Wu-pui, displayed a wonderful amount of resource and stamina and kept pegging away from the baseline, occasionally going in to volley. Hussain found that he had to keep the ball in play and could not secure quick points. Most of the games were dragged out to their limit, and as the match wore on, so did the contestants play more and more for safety.

When Hussain appeared to have the winning set within his grasp, he dramatically collapsed to the ground writhing with pain, and the players decided to call the match off.

Scores were as follows:

Open Singles.—S. W. Liang beat Ma Chin-chong 6-4, 6-3; C. P. Ip beat G. Cho 2-0, 6-3, 6-2. The match between S. S. Hussain and Wei Chung was abandoned with the former leading by 5-7, 7-5, 7-6.

Open Doubles.—E.L.H. Shute and K. Shute beat B. O'M. Deane and J. F. Ley 6-3, 0-7; E.C. Fletcher and W.C. Hung beat A.L. Sullivan and H. Owen Hughes 6-2, 6-0; G.C. Burnett and A. W. Ramsay received a walk-over from J. C. Pool and R. M. Henry.

Club Handicap Singles.—F.V. Harrison beat G.E.R. Divett 6-3, 2-6, 6-1; J.T.B. Evans beat L.R. Andrews 4-6, 7-5, 7-5; L.T. Ride beat E.M. Bryden 6-0, 6-3.

than an ordinary chance of winning, even though the Navy will be strengthened as a result of the return of a portion of the fleet. Tall scoring is possible on the matting wicket, which suggests a drawn game.

Kowloon Cricket Club are at home to the University, and despite the students' smart success of last week, one is inclined to favour the mainland's prospects of winning. Varsity must face Lee, Goodwin, Lay and Anderson, as well as the possibility of Sergeant on a soft wicket, and I doubt whether their batting will be sufficient to meet the test.

SECOND DIVISION

Four second division league games are booked. Cricket Club will probably beat Creelio, Indians cannot be too sanguine about their chances against Army "B", while Army "A" should at least hold their own against Cringewower. Civil Service receive Army "C", and I imagine, a whacking.

SEASON'S BIG "HATE"

To-morrow, the cricket season's big "bate" is due to be settled at the Kowloon Cricket Club, when the club's first and second elevens meet in an all-day encounter.

The idea (apparently) is for the first eleven to demonstrate to the Juniors that they "ain't so hot" despite the fact they won the league, while the Juniors are perfectly convinced that my colleague R. Abbit is right, and that the senior XI is one of the four teams in the first division, which they are capable of beating.

The second string are somewhat chastened by the news that neither W. C. Hung nor G. C. Burnett can play for them, but I understand T. Hunter and Baker, both members of the club, who have performed with credit for the Police this season, will fill the gap.

A last minute chit from the club-house indicates a vehement denial that the senior team will have their wicket-keeper (complete with pads) opening the attack at the Bowling Green Club end. Likewise the Juniors have protested against the report that they will not declare their innings until 5.30 p.m. They will declare sharp at 5.20!

M.C.C. Recovery Against Victoria XI

Benalla, Mar. 5.

Losing six wickets for only 134 runs, the M.C.C. tourists to-day made a good recovery in their two-day match against a Victorian County XI and finally scored 344. Both sides are battoning 12 men.

At lunch, four wickets had fallen for 138, Walter Hammond being out for 53. After the interval two more wickets fell without any addition to the score, but L.B. Fishlock came to the rescue with 104, made in 155 minutes. His scoring strokes included 14 fours. W. Voce had a merry knock, hitting up 53 not out in 50 minutes. He scored a six and eight fours.

The Victorian County XI had lost two wickets for 29 runs when stumps were drawn.—Reuters.

History Of Australia Cricket (Concluded)

THE 1934 RUBBER IN ENGLAND

WYATT, THE BOGEY IS BROUGHT IN AS CAPTAIN AND THE "ASHES" ARE LOST

The tour of Jardine's side ended in 1933 on a note of general dissatisfaction, but the M.C.C. had backed up their captain, and moreover had made him the captain of an M.C.C. side which was to tour India in 1934-35.

But as time went on and the question of leg-theory bowling was debated with Australia it seems—so to a great many people at least, that the M.C.C. were altering their view. I have always suspected that the change in their attitude was due in large measure to the statements of Hobbs and Warner both of whom had developed a very strong feeling against the theories. However, they may be right. There is no doubt that Jardine felt that he had been thrown overboard to appear the Australian under-Lorwood, too, smarting at an incredible series of public insults and abuse which had been hurled at him during the later part of the tour, and suffering physically from a bruised heel which at one time seemed likely to end his cricket career forever. This is anathema when a professional writes and criticises the M.C.C. policy.

How far a certain influence, which had no reason to bore the M.C.C. was behind Lorwood's outburst one does not know. But there it was. Voce too had to be left out as his was no means ready to bowl unless he could set his field as he liked.

Suffice it to say, however, that when England came to pick a team to meet the Australians, she was bereft of three players who had had more to do with previous victories than practically any one else. The pilot was dropped and the Selectors—

Mr. J. Ralston, Inspector of English Schools gave away the prizes and when giving watches as awards to the winning team of the Inter-Class Tug-of-war remarked smilingly, "Now you won't be late."

STARTERS FOR FIRST EXTRA MEETING

The last game at the Oval had to be fought to a finish and England set about trying to improve the side. The Selectors very wisely dropped Hopwood and Mitchell bringing in Allen and Clark. But when Hendren had to call off owing to a strain they brought in Woolley who, admittedly had done well for Kent. He was 47 years of age and had played as a bat in an unlimited time game! One cannot help thinking that the Selectors were recalling the success of Rhodes in 1920! But he was a bowler. Everyone felt sorry for Woolley who only made 4 and 6 and dropped Ponsford twice in the slips early on in the first innings.

C. V. Grimmett

396—143—608—25—20.72

W. J. O'Reilly

334—123—608—28—24.02

As regards the batsmen, Bradman, at times apt to throw his wicket away from an excess of attacking zeal, had become a master of strokes and his skill amazed everyone. Ponsford, though out of one match from illness was amazingly good if a trifle lucky at times. McCabe played better than ever while Brown made a great impression as a batsman.

The fielding was far better than Woodfull had expected. Bromley, Brown, Chipperfield and Darling were splendid. Oldfield was as good as ever though he did not do quite so well with the bat, chiefly no doubt because the occasion seldom arose when he had to pull things round.

A lot of bowlers could bowl it, but none disguise it with the art of Grimmett, and a crop of lb.w. decisions followed.

O'Reilly had an excellent record.

"TELEGRAPH'S" NEW FILM SERIAL

"Lloyd's of London" is a film which is shortly to be presented at a local Theatre. To-day appears the second instalment of the full story of the episodes in the life of the great corporation on which the film is based. It is a narrative of much interest in itself and is appropriately made public at a time when the presentation of the film in Hongkong is soon to be made.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Jonathan Blake, 18-year-old orphaned slave to disolute old Widow Blake, proprietress of a water-side tavern at Burnham-Thorpe in the English countryside, overhauled two drunken customers, sailors, plotting to transfer a cargo of gold from the brig Maggie-O, scuttled her and fraudulently compelled Lloyd of London, the shrews, to pay the shippers for its destruction. Jonathan, the son of his playmate, Horatio Nelson, who used later to be Admiral Lord Nelson, in the fashionable home of the latter's churchman father, and the two agree they must baffle the plotters.

Chapter Two

It is probable that there has never been a boy of good family, tenderly reared, grounded in the conventions of his class and taught pride in his superior breeding, who did not experience an unhappy delight in associating with boys his direct antithesis in breeding and social ethics. Jonathan Blake was well aware that Horatio Nelson's parents disapproved of him very strongly as a companion for their son. Horatio also was aware of it; hence with the curious wilfulness of boyhood they had struck up a friendly and defiance of parental ministrations and rejoiced in the knowledge that their friend had incurred an element of danger. Both were braves of daring and initiative; they were venturesome with the courage to take risks, for the life of each won, in a widely divergent array of dull risks and thrills enable one to bear with the tedium of a dull life. Horatio was an extraordinarily obedient boy, yet he could not bring himself to obey his father's injunctions to associate with the rascals. Jonathan, however, had a little charrmored that his father, a clergyman, did not possess a wider charity. Jonathan, however, had no thoughts on the matter. His low social status gave him a wide measure of freedom, and he had accustomed himself to baffle treatment. Horatio was the sole gentle human being he had ever known and he adored the latter accordingly.

The two boys proceeded through the forest to the boat landing, the compact Horatio, ever the leader in their escapades, helped himself calmly to a skiff lying at the float and slipped the oars. Neither he nor Jonathan had the slightest idea of their destination, nevertheless the former was not without the off chance that fate would lead them in the right direction. For an hour they pulled around, tacking turns at rowing; then out of the thick mist the high stems of a vessel protruded above the water. "It's the Maggie-O," Jonathan said, "we've got an uninteresting about our share."

"Ah, so you do. I'd forgotten that, of course," Hawkins. The scamen are to receive ten sovereigns each, the mates fifteen."

"Make-it-a-hundred-pun-each," the scavenge urged.

"Get a sailor," the master of the Maggie-O cried. "Get them. Damnation! They know too much."

"Get on with it," the master snapped. "I'll have no back talk from you Hawkins."

Hawkins grinned evilly and waved a decapitating paw. "Before we tramp on home, buckle 'em on," he said, "so we get a better understanding about our share."

"They'll be all right," Jonathan said, "they're not us. We got to have the money as soon as the gold's sold."

The master of the Seaborne had slipped around in the back of the man; he had paused at the pin rail long enough to select from the crew the scavenge he had selected his mate, the club came down on the back of his head and he dropped unconscious to the deck. "Now, then," the master of the Seaborne announced calmly, "who wants come more of the same? Get along with it, I tell you."

The boys dropped behind the barrels, and tumbled with their leader how to combat, the crew picked up the ingots and carried them down into the cuddy of the Seaborne. On their return to the hold of the Maggie-O the master of the Seaborne helped each man across the deck. It was a brutal kick or a blow of his fist.

"We've seen enough," Jonathan whispered to Horatio, "they are removing the gold from the cargo of the Maggie-O to the Seaborne; then they'll haul the Maggie-O away some distance and sink her."

"Oh, I couldn't go, Jonathan."

(To be continued)

Crouched behind a barrel on the deck of the Maggie-O, Jonathan and Horatio listen to the semi-mutinous crew of that ship demand a greater share of the gold looted from the hold of the Seaborne, under threat of informing Lloyd's of London concerning the plot.

Jonathan the master of the Seaborne, who had been a boy in his day, whirled and challenged sharply: "Who's there?"

"Two boys," the master of the Maggie-O cried. "Get them. Damnation! They know too much."

Said Horatio, "Take it easy, Jonathan. We can never get back aboard our ship. Follow me down to our skip. Forward. Quickly."

They fled up the deck with the two shipmasters racing after them. "Overboard with you!" Horatio ordered, and Jonathan, frightened, hung back. Instantly Horatio leapt overboard and turned him overboard; he heard the bark of a pistol and the whine of a bullet past his head as he dove off the high bow. When he came up Jonathan was beside him, holding water. "Dive, Horatio," he said, "and don't worry about your clothes."

"I'll be awful but I'll go."

Jonathan opened his hand and extended it to his pal. "Tip us your snuff," he demanded, well pleased to have had record of the agreed alliance. "I'll be a good sailor," he said.

"Get on with it," the master of the Maggie-O cried. "Get them. Damnation! They know too much."

FEATURES OF NEW FORDS

DISPLAY OPEN TO PUBLIC

Motorists in general will find much to interest and delight in the annual display of Ford cars which is at present being held in Messrs. Wallace Harper and Company's commodious showrooms in Nathan Road, Kowloon. The show features the new Lincoln Zephyrus and the 1937 Ford V-8, a vehicle which greatly impressed newspapermen at a preview last night. The exhibition is open to the public to-day and to-morrow from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., and should not be missed.

The largest steel stamping ever used in Ford car manufacture forms the top of all Ford V-8 closed car bodies for 1937. These new Ford V-8 bodies are all-steel, with steel structures, steel floor and steel panels, in addition to the steel top. This is considered to be the most important advance in Ford body design since Ford adopted the steel body structure some years ago. The huge steel top stamping extends from the windshield back to below the rear windows and from side to side down to the tops of the doors and the side panels. It is welded electrically in a huge fixture with the body structure, the internal steel panels and the steel floor into a single unit of tremendous strength and rigidity, as safe as the body of a motor car can be made. No wood is used in the body structure at any point, not even for tackling upholstery into place. A special tack-retaining material is used for that purpose.

OTHER FEATURES

Other noteworthy features of the Ford V-8 are:

Roomy luggage compartments.
New soft easy action safety brakes, with the safety of steel throughout the mechanism. The brakes have controlled self-energisation.

"Centre-pole" design, combining improved spring suspension, correct balance and proper passenger weight distribution.

New shield-type hood, hinged at back, lifts from the front, latches with the radiator emblem.

All the inconvenience which used to be necessary in servicing a battery is avoided in the new Ford V-8. The battery is housed in a recess on the right hand side of the dash under the engine hood. The location is more accessible for testing and adding water. The heavy cable to the starter is shorter, resulting in decreasing the resistance in the starter circuit.

Headlamps are now foaled into the fender aprons. They have lenses of special design to conform with the aerodynamic appearance of the car.

Rubber insulators are employed at many points. They are used in the shock absorber connecting links, ball socket of the front radius rods, engine mountings, muffler mountings, and around the bolts attaching the body to the frame. They aid in insulating the body from the frame. They also reduce the number of points where lubrication is required.

For the same reason, the honest pacifist cannot agree with the system of capital punishment.

The last question put by "Realist" is hardly relevant, because if all Christian Pacifists replied in the negative, he would probably call them either liars or fools. In which case the Christian Pacifist would be wrong whether he did, or did not, lock his door at night.

China Navy Engineers Study Here

Twelve Chinese naval engineers have arrived in Hongkong to complete their training under British instruction.

They are from the Chinese Government Submarine School at Chingkiang, capital of Klangus. They arrived here by the steamer Hui Li last week.

For the next twelve months they will be attached to the Hongkong and Whampoa Dockyard.

Commander Tsai, of the Chinese Navy, is in charge of the party.
